Lame duck Congress meets today

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican leader Howard Baker Sunday forecast bipartisan cooperation in the lame-duck congressional session that starts today and is all but certain to enact a public works-jobs bill.

Democrats may press to add housing, sewer and other public works construction to the highway, bridge and mass transit repairs included in the legislation.

But, Baker said, there will be considerable agreement this year and in the next Congress because "stimulating the economy is not a Democratic or Republican concept."

Moreover, he said in an interview on CBS's "Face the Nation," most Republicans now agree federal social programs "cannot be cut significantly again," and most Democrats agree the national budget "must be got under control."

The lame-duck session -- likely to last little more than three weeks -- was called mainly because President Reagan wanted Congress to deal with appropriation bills for the remainder of the current fiscal year.

But a surprisingly strong consensus developed over the past two weeks, favoring enactment of a 5-cent gasoline tax increase to finance the needed public works and create jobs in a depressed labor market.

Reagan is expected to announce details of his plans for the $5.5 billion legislation before leaving on a Latin American trip Tuesday.

Congressional stategy also will be worked out Monday when Baker and House Speaker Thomas O'Neill meet with their committee chairmen.

Reagan probably will run into united opposition if he tries he tie the bill to an acceleration of the third year, 10 percent tax cut by moving it up fro July 1 to Jan. 1.

"I think we already had that debate," Baker said a few days ago, hinting the idea is dead.

Baker said he has made a commitment to call up a pending antitrust bill, and also wants action to permit live television of the Senate. But he predicted that little more than some appropriation bills and the gas tax-jobs measure will be enacted before Christmas.

Since there is no way that all the pending money bills can be passed during the short session, Congress also will have to pass another so-called "continuing resolution" to finance government operations in the interim.

That action will not be a happy one for most members to take, since it is certain to include a continuance of the ceiling on top federal pay increases. If that ceiling were dropped, members of Congress and other top officials would get a pay raise.

Baker's remarks also appeared virtually to rule out any resolution during the lame-duck session of the conflict over the MX missile and Reagan's proposed "dense pack" basing scheme, or on any other controversial pending legislation.

Trade talks lurch to end in acrimony

By JOHN CALLCOTT
United Press International

GENEVA, Switzerland — International trade talks lurched to an acrimonious end early today without any consensus on concrete action to fight protectionism.

A compromise package would have governments simply "resist" protectionist barriers as best they could and merely "study" ways to return to open market policies.

Complete consensus was blocked — meaning the conference in fact failed — as many nations expressed reservations on various points in the already diluted package.

The European Community announced its reservations above all on sections dealing with agricultural trade, while Third World countries had reservations on the issue of freer trade in service industries like banking, insurance and shipping.

Reservations mean countries expressing them refused to be bound by language in the 17-page document drawn up in six days and nights of often bitter bargaining — two days longer than had been scheduled.

Officials of the 88-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade said there was "a real danger" of the talks concluding without consensus and with bitter disagreement.

A final plenary session to endorse the compromise document — with countries free to make comments on what they could or could not accept — was set for 3 a.m. (7 p.m. MST).

"I don't think Congress will be happy with some of the elements of the document," U.S. trade representative William E. Brock told reporters.

Congress is pressuring the Reagan administration for protectionist measures against countries that restrict American goods, especially farm products.

French Foreign Trade Minister Michel Jobert, who led the European resistance against promises on agriculture, said he hoped the United States would take "a measured and pragmatic approach."

"We have been at war on agriculture ever since the end of World War II," Jobert said, repeating an earlier statement that he considered the talks "inopportune and useless."

The conference began Wednesday and had been scheduled to end Saturday with a ringing declaration against protectionism and pledges to eliminate existing free trade barriers.

Instead, the compromise package called on GATT nations merely to "reduce trade frictions and overcome protectionist measures" as best they can.

The United States was joined by Australia, Canada and many developing countries in attacking the European Economic Community for refusing to go beyond "a study" on agricultural trade.

Good morning!

'Dog-gone it, fellas . . .'

Billy Jenkins, left, and his sister, Peggi, along with Anna Wolford, try to teach their dog, Wizz, the finer points of walking a fence. Wizz didn't like the idea of walking the precarious perch too much, although he did stay in one spot on the fence by himself. The kids, all from Twin Falls, took advantage of the change in weather Sunday afternoon from rain to sunshine to have some outdoor fun.

Gem court ruling to determine power costs

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS -- A decision two weeks ago by the Idaho Supreme Court will help determine the future of power costs and farmland development in Idaho.

Although lawyers involved in the case and other water experts can agree on that much, they cannot say how, and when, and in precisely what way the effects of the court's 30-page decision will begin to be seen.

Even the exact meaning of the court's decision -- that the Idaho Power Co. cannot lose its rights to water for hydropower generation simply because someone seeks the same water for irrigation — was not clear to them.

"I've read it twice. I think I'll have to read it 20 more times," said Twin Falls lawyer John Rosholt, who helped represent Idaho Power in the case.

"I really hate to say anything until after Dec. 10, or sometime down in there," said Paul Juaregui, another Idaho Power attorney.

"It's a very significant decision for the Snake River," he said.

But until the deadline for appealing the decision passes, he declined to analyze what effects it could have.

The state Supreme Court could be asked to reconsider its opinion until Dec. 10. Also, the Idaho Department of Water Resources and the canal companies and that opposed Idaho Power in the case, have until February to ask the U.S. Supreme Court to rule on it.

Attorneys for those groups say they have not had time to study the decision and decide what their next steps might be.

"We haven't sat down within the department and really gone over the decision," said a lawyer for the Department of Water Resources.

William Ringert, a Boise lawyer who represented two canal companies from the Glenns Ferry-Grandview area, says that no plans have been made for the losers in the case to meet and discuss their next move.

As for his reaction to the decision, he said: "The only reaction I've had thus far is that there might be some need to ask the court for clarification of what their decision means."

If no appeals are filed, the next step would take place in Fourth District Court, where the Supreme Court ordered the case returned. That court would determine whether Idaho Power is entitled to almost 3,000 cubic feet per second of water at Swan Falls Dam, south of Boise, that has been lost to irrigators during the past decade.

The original water right for the dam, filed in the 1920s, calls for 8,400 cubic feet per second. That has been reduced to about 5,500 cfs by diversions for irrigation that Idaho Power did not oppose. The Supreme Court left it up to the district court to determine if Idaho Power can now regain those rights.

In either case, the decision could halt the development of new farm land from desert in Twin Falls and Elmore counties. These plans had relied on using water from the Snake River for irrigation.

This case began in the mid-1970s.

A consumer group -- led by attorney and former Idaho Public Utilities Commission member Matthew Mullaney and state Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey — accused Idaho Power of allowing its supply of cheap hydroelectric power to be reduced by new irrigation projects. If the utility had defended its rights and not allowed irrigators to divert water from the Snake River without compensating the company, it could have reduced its need for new, higher-cost sources of power, they argued.

Gooding man to present power sale case to Idaho PUC

By The Times-News
and United Press International

BOISE — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission will hear the case of a Gooding man who wants to sell power to a reluctant Idaho Power Co.

The hearing will be held Dec. 13 in Boise.

John Koyle has proposed a 1,200-kilowatt hydroelectric project where the Big and Little Wood rivers join. He says it could begin producing power next fall.

He claims negotiations with the utility have broken down, despite existing orders from the PUC that the utility buy energy from cogeneration projects such as his at prices already set by the commission.

A similar complaint filed last summer by a firm from Afton, Wyo., prompted Idaho Power to ask the state Supreme Court to rule if the PUC has the authority to order utilities to sign contracts for small power projects at predetermined prices.

Idaho Power eventually did sign a contract with the Afton firm to buy power from its plant, which burns wood wastes, but part of the agreement calls for a review of the contract after 10 years.

Larry Taylor, a spokesman for Idaho Power, says the company is trying to drive a tougher bargain with small power producers in order to avoid obligating Idaho Power customers to long-term agreements at inflated prices.

There has been "a significant decrease in the value of energy in the Northwest," he says. During the past summer, Idaho Power reduced its forecast for growth in the demand for electrical power. It canceled or postponed many projects to supply new power. Other utilities in the region have done the same. And there is a power-surplus forecast for the region for the next few years, Taylor says.

Thus, Idaho Power can expect to have sufficient resources to meet its demand, plus it can expect to be able to buy additional energy for less than previously forecast, Taylor says.

The prices set by the PUC to be paid to small power producers were set before these changes in the market, he says. At hearings in January, Idaho Power will ask the PUC to lower the rates to an annual average of 5.6 cents per kilowatt hour for the most dependable projects. Compared with the current formula, that would represent a reduction of more than 20 percent.

"If we were to go out and sign contracts with everybody that has come to us, we could sign contracts for more than 60 megawatts by the year 1985," Taylor says. But the company's forecasts say it will need only 40 megawatts from cogenerators by that time.

Plus, under the current formula, each of these megawatts would be costlier than the energy the utility believes will be available from other sources.

Late news

Merchants start cleaning up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the wake of a rampage sparked by the Ku Klux Klan's first rally in Washington in 57 years, downtown merchants Sunday began repairing damage estimated in the tens of thousands of dollars.

Thousands of anti-Klan demonstrators roamed through downtown for more than two hours Saturday, hurling bricks, bottles and rocks at police and shops and engaged in sporadic looting. Police Sunday were still compiling a crowd estimate.

The violence came after a half dozen Klan members held a peaceful rally in Lafayette Square across the street from the White House to protest proposals to give illegal aliens amnesty.

At a news conference Sunday, Delegate Walter Fauntroy, the District of Columbia's non-voting member of Congress, called for a police investigation to determine whether the violence was the result of a conspiracy.

Israelis accept compromise

By United Press International

The Israeli Cabinet Sunday accepted a U.S.-sponsored compromise on long-awaited peace talks with Lebanon but held firm on a demand some of the negotiations be conducted in Jerusalem.

"The heads of the two delegations will be properly authorized representatives," Cabinet Secretary Dan Meridor said, reading a government communique after the weekly cabinet meeting.

The statement was seen as a retreat from the Jewish state's former position that talks on the withdrawal of some 30,000 Israeli forces from Lebanon include ministers representing both nations.

The compromise was sponsored by U.S. special envoy Philip Habib and his assistant Morris Draper.

Pope planning Salvador trip

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Pope John Paul II will visit El Salvador in the spring, a Catholic church spokesman said Sunday.

Salvadoran priest Gregorio Rosa Chavez said the pope will make a short trip to El Salvador at the end of February or beginning of March, 1983. Rosa Chavez would not give details on the trip.

The pope's scheduled trip to El Salvador, racked by civil war for three years, would come shortly before a long-delayed visit to his native Poland.

Accident kills Idaho woman

SANDPOINT (UPI) — A 30-year-old Sandpoint woman was pronounced dead at Bonner General Hospital in Sandpoint after a weekend accident on U.S. 95.

Susan Margaret O'Connell was killed when the car she was riding in was struck in the right side by another vehicle as she was headed north on the highway near Sandpoint, an Idaho State Police dispatcher said.

O'Connell apparently was alone in the car and no one else was injured in the accident which occurred at 6:40 p.m. Saturday, authorities said.

Another spy scandal looms

LONDON (UPI) — The army has detained a junior officer at a major military base, the Ministry of Defense said Sunday, touching off press speculation about another spy within Britain's intelligence network.

The ministry said a non-commissioned officer in the Intelligence corps had been detained at Aldershot, west of London, one of the British army's biggest bases, and charged with "improperly carrying out his duties."

Body found near JFK grave

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "badly burned" body of an unidentified man was found Sunday lying next to the grave of President John F. Kennedy at Arlington National Cemetery, U.S. Park Police said.

The body was found at 6:13 a.m. MST, shortly after the cemetery opened. A police statement called the body "badly burned."

Officer Philip Kramer said visitors to Kennedy grave called police.

"They opened up the gravesite and the people who went up there I think they found him," said Kramer. "They're still going to have to do an autopsy on it."

The Kennedy grave, marked by an eternal flame, is located on a hillside overlooking the Potomac River and Washington.

Fighting erupts in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Fighting between Druze Moslem and Christian militias in mountains southeast of Beirut erupted Sunday killing one Druze and three Christians, government security sources said.

In a related incident, rightist Christian militiamen opened fire on a group of journalists approaching Bhamdoun, 9 miles east of Beirut, wounding Kenneth Jobson, a British cameraman for UPITN, journalists in the group said.

Ice slaps slippery blanket over wide area of nation

By United Press International

Freezing rain turned highways to glare ice from Nebraska to the Appalachians Sunday as millions of motorists headed home at the close of the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

Icy roads were blamed for two traffic deaths in Iowa and two in northern Illinois. Interstates in Minnesota and Ohio were closed because they were so slippery.

Cold winds roaring beneath wet bridges in Waterloo, Iowa, turned them into icy accident traps, triggering multiple vehicle pileups. In one hour Waterloo police reported a series of accidents involving 36 cars and 22 injuries. There were 16 cars in one pile-up on a bridge, and 9 injuries in a two-car crash.

The state patrol closed Interstate 35-W in Minnesota from the Iowa line to near Minneapolis Sunday afternoon because it was too slick to drive on. Roads across southern Minnesota were ice-coated.

Up to a quarter inch of ice sheathed southeastern South Dakota.

Northern Ohio roads were turned into sheets of ice by freezing rain, briefly forcing the closing of interstates in the Cleveland area and causing dozens of incidents.

Freezing rain changed to rain over parts of Wisconsin and northern Indiana and Ohio by afternoon as temperatures warmed.

Travelers advisories for freezing rain remained in effect from southeastern South Dakota into much of Wisconsin and Lower Michigan as well as western Pennsylvania, western Maryland, western Virginia and northern Delaware. Forecasters said the band of freezing precipitation would spread northeast into New York and western New England during the night.

Freezing rain changed to snow on the western fringe of the storm system. Norfolk, Neb., had an inch of new snow on the ground at noon MST, and light snow extended into Kansas and northwest Missouri.

Bright but cool weather dominated eastern New York and New England. A cold dome of air extending over the Atlantic held afternoon temperatures in the 20s or 30s over the region. The same cold air mass helped Atlantic City, N.J., set a record low temperature of 16 degrees, breaking the old record of 19 set in 1951.

In southwest Texas skies were bright but travelers advisories were posted for winds that gusted into the 45-55 mph range.

South of the ice belt, rain fell from the Mississippi Valley to the Appalachians.

In the West, rain was scattered from the pacific Northwest and northern California into the Idaho panhandle and northern Nevada.

Lows Sunday dipped into the teens and single digits across much of New York and New England, the teens in North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Upper Michigan, and the low 20s and 30s south toward the Gulf Coast, where temperatures in the 40s prevailed.

Highway death toll reaches 344

By United Press International

Persistent rain, freezing rain and snow turned highways to sheets of ice from the Midwest to the Appalachians Sunday, boosting the highway death toll on the fourth and last day of the Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

By Sunday evening, 344 people had died in traffic accidents, a UPI count showed. The holiday ended at midnight Sunday.

California reported 45 deaths. Florida reported 25 and New York 22.

Michigan had 19 traffic deaths, Texas 16 and Tennessee 15. Ohio and Alabama reported 13 deaths, Illinois, Georgia and Massachusetts each had 12, Kansas and North Carolina reported 11, Indiana had 10 and Pennsylvania had nine.

There were eight deaths reported in Mississippi, seven in Kentucky and Louisiana, six in Missouri and Wisconsin and five each in Arkansas, Colorado, Minnesota, South Carolina and Virginia.

Arizona, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Maine and Oregon reported four deaths, Nebraska, Connecticut and West Virginia three, Delaware, Iowa, Maryland and New Mexico two, and New Hampshire, Rhode Island and South Dakota, one each.

No deaths were reported in Alaska, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington and Wyoming.

Wood River area dark as guard device fails

HAILEY — Lights in the Wood River Valley went out about 10 p.m. Saturday and weren't restored until early Sunday morning because of an unusual line breakdown.

Affected communities included Sun Valley, Elkhorn, Ketchum, Hailey and Bellevue, Idaho Power Co. officials reported.

The cause was a faulty lightning arrestor — a unique device that normally protects power lines when they are hit by lightning.

"What these arrestors normally do is allow the extra voltage from the lightning to be safely transmitted to the ground without harming the lines," said spokesman Jerry Nielson of Twin Falls.

"Sometimes, however, one will get damaged by the lightning, and then at a later time it will fail," he said. "I've been here six years and this is the first one I've seen on this line."

Essentially, the malfunctioning device allowed all power to be transmitted into the ground, Nielson said.

"It was a really difficult thing for us to find," he continued. "The crews had to comb the area before discovering what and where the problem was."

By making temporary repairs, power was restored to the Hailey-Bellevue area about 1 a.m. and to the northern communities about 6 a.m. About 6,500 users were affected by the outage.

"We should warn people that a short, 15- to 20-minute, outage eventually will be required when we are able to install a new lightning arrestor, but we will give everyone advance warning when that time comes," Nielson said.

Temporary president for CSI

TWIN FALLS — A temporary president will be named Tuesday for the College of Southern Idaho.

The five-member board of trustees will meet in a closed-door session to evaluate the school's administrative changes following the death of CSI President James L. "Doc" Taylor two weeks ago.

"I'm sure we will announce a temporary president at the Tuesday meeting," board Chairman LeRoy Craig said Sunday.

The board will convene its executive session at noon, but a public meeting will follow at 1 p.m., in the board room of the Taylor Administration Building.

"This will be the only topic of our meeting," Craig said.

But Craig said the board will be considering both long- and short-term directions to meet CSI's future management needs.

"The college belongs to the Association of Community College Trustees, and this group does recommend a standard plan in dealing with situations like ours," Craig said. "Obviously, many colleges face this problem (the death of a chief administrator) each year around the nation.

"We will be reviewing this plan, and decide which parts we like and which we don't," he said.

Craig stressed that CSI is facing no immediate management or fiscal crisis, and can operate with existing staff for some time.

"The college has been operating very well the last 10 months (the time of Taylor's illness)," Craig said. "There is no crisis. We have time to move in the direction best for the college."

Twin Falls ranger into new offices

TWIN FALLS — Public service at the Twin Falls District Forest Service office will be disrupted today and Tuesday while employees move to a new location.

The Forest Service is moving its office from its present Blue Lakes Boulevard location to the Forest Service complex at 2647 Kimberly Road E., immediately next door to Robertson Supply Inc.

The move is being made to improve public service and to save approximately $14,000 a year in rent costs.

"We will still attempt to help people that visit our (Blue Lakes Boulevard) office during the move," says district ranger Jerry Davis. "We hope that the public will bear with us for a couple days."

Phone service also will be disrupted temporarily during the move, and alternate phone numbers will be 733-3698 or 733-3965. After the move is completed, the district office's original number, 734-5490, will be restored after Monday, Dec. 6.

Water

In 1979, a Fourth District Court judge ruled that Idaho Power gave up part of its water rights at Swan Falls Dam as part of an agreement to build three dams in Hells Canyon.

Idaho Power argued that the agreement that its water rights could be depleted by irrigation upstream applied only to the Hells Canyon Dam complex. If the water rights at all the company's dams were subordinate to irrigation demand, the company's rights could be reduced by "every potential irrigator walking around with a shovel," Twin Falls lawyer Tom Nelson said while arguing the case before the state's high court.

Battle lines over MX drawn

By SEAN McCORMALLY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and a key foe of the MX missile Sunday drew battle lines for a clash over the weapon President Reagan wants as an arms talks bargaining chip.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said Reagan's "dense pack" basing plan is "a wish in the dark" and declared Capitol Hill opponents of the proposal have the votes to stop it.

But Weinberger argued spending more than $26 billion to plant 100 of the multiple-warhead missiles in superhardened close-together silos would give the Soviet Union "incentive" to negotiate meaningful arms control.

Trouble for Reagan's proposal was further evident when defense-minded Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said the basing plan is in "deep trouble" on Capitol Hill.

Weinberger and Hollings appeared in separate interviews on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" to discuss Reagan's decision last week to bury the new missiles in a mile-wide by 14-mile-long area in southeastern Wyoming.

CASPAR WEINBERGER
Defends MX basing plan

Jackson was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Hollings, who has offered an amendment to cut off $988 million to build the first five MX missiles, assailed the dense pack plan as absurd. He said that anyone who proposed putting "all the eggs in one basket" a decade ago would have been a candidate for a "straitjacket."

Asked if he has a straitjacket ready, Hollings declared, "We have the votes."

He added that if the MX is stopped in the lame-duck session opening Monday, the idea is dead because the new Congress convening in January will fine up even more fiercely against the idea.

While Hollings' amendment is expected to face a vote in the special session, it is unlikely Reagan's full-fledged dense pack plan will be ready for lawmakers until early next year.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," did not refer directly to the MX, but left it off his list of legislation that may come up in the post-election meeting.

Said Jackson, "I think the Congress, with budget we face and the cuts we need to make in defense, this one (the MX basing proposal) is going to be high on that list for revision."

Jackson noted the Reagan basing plan would not be ready before 1986 and only be secure against Soviet attack for about four years. "That's a lot of money to pay for that," Jackson said.

Weinberger, however, argued cutting military spending would not really help reduce federal deficits. He said a dollar cut from the Pentagon would save only 50 cents in red ink, since defense funds pay for jobs.

The key to the dispute over the MX — already about $4.5 billion in the making — is "survivability."

Reagan says it is needed to assure that the United States can strike back against a Soviet nuclear assault, since other U.S. weapons are vulnerable.

Weinberger that without the MX, there is "no incentive" for the Soviets to negotiate with the United States on arms control in Geneva.

But Hollings argued the "fratricide" theory behind dense pack is bunk and, "All the experts are on our side."

Weinberger defended the fratricide idea — that the first Soviet bombs to explode over the MX field would knock out subsequent missiles. In the meantime, the protected MXs would be safely waiting for launch.

"Survivability's the whole thing," he said.

Reagan's bargaining plan fails, Soviet says

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Reagan's attempt to use MX missiles as a bargaining chip in arms talks with the Soviet Union is "blackmail" and will only aggravate the arms race, the Kremlin's top American expert said Sunday.

Georgi Arbatov, director of the Soviet Institute of the United States and Canada, repeated the Soviet leadership's contention that the MX missiles represent an "outright violation" of the unratified SALT II accord.

"What is implied here is that under the threat of blackmail from the United States they will create with their MX a worse strategic situation for us in the second half of the '80s," Arbatov, a key ally of new Soviet leader Yuri Andropov, said on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley."

"They want to pressure us into accepting American conditions for so-called START talks, which maybe should be called 'stop' talks," he said.

Arbatov, interviewed from Moscow, said the U.S. conditions "would put us in an even worse strategic position than the MX would because we would have one and a half times less delivery means and almost three times less nuclear warheads.

"So it doesn't work and the bargaining chip never worked," he said. "It was only a pretext for building new weapons systems."

Rocket fuel explosion triggers giant 'sparkler,' kills 4 workers

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (UPI) — Thirty thousand pounds of solid rocket fuel exploded like a "Fourth of July sparkler" and killed four workmen attempting to recover the fuel from the bottom of an underground MX missile testing facility.

Sixteen people attempting to put out the fire suffered smoke inhalation.

Brig. Gen. Kenneth A. Johnson, base commander at the Arnold Engineering Development Center, said there was an "instantaneous flash" at 5 p.m. MST Saturday as workmen were slicing the fuel so it could be removed from the test cell by crane.

"The only way I could put it in layman's terms was that it was like a Fourth of July sparkler. We had a massive amount of fuel that went off like a big sparkler that set off a great deal of heat and fire," Johnson said.

Officials identified three of the dead as Dona J. Roy Jr., 57, Murray L. Tauscher, 49, and Arthur Totten, 48, all employees of Aerojet General Corp. and all from the Sacramento, Calif., area.

The fourth victim, an employee of Sverdrup Technology Inc., headquartered in St. Louis, was not immediately identified.

A television camera was lowered into the cell to help safety officials determine when it was safe to try to remove the bodies.

Johnson said officials were in communication with the men up until 10 minutes before the fire and everything was going fine. Suddenly, he said, there was a small explosion and then a flash fire. "A spark of some nature is undoubtedly what set it off," Johnson said, but added he did not know what caused the spark.

Johnson said the Sverdrup employee was observing the three workmen from an elevator platform 70 feet above the floor of the cell and the other three men were on the floor of the cell when the fuel ignited.

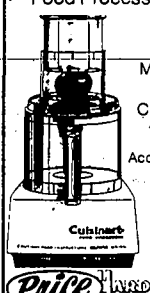

Johnson said 50,000 pounds of solid rocket fuel dropped to the bottom of the 250-feet deep cell Nov. 17 when a casing housing the fuel ruptured during testing of a stage 2 rocket motor.

Firemen used 3 million gallons of water to extinguish that blaze and then spent several days pumping water from the cell so fuel recovery operations could begin.

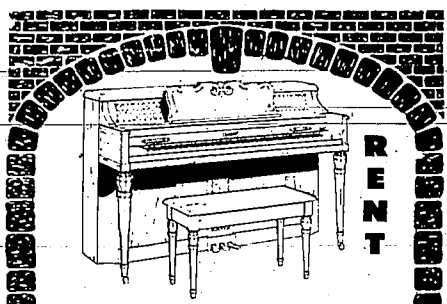

Workmen began removing the fuel on Nov. 22 and had removed 20,000 pounds when something touched off the remainder shortly after dark on Saturday.

"They did not have any chance at all," Johnson said of the victims.

Mother of 3 Loses 45 Lbs. on Weight Loss Program and Finds New Energy to Keep Up With Her Children

By DON DAVIS
Special Writer

At age 31, Marsha Taylor felt like a person of 61. And, in her mind's eye, she looked like a person of 61.

She seemed to have lost her vitality and energy. She dragged through the day, often flopping exhausted into bed before 9 p.m.

She was depressed. She dreaded meeting new people. She hated to leave the house. "I became a social outcast," she recalls.

Marsha had a serious weight problem which was taking an enormous toll both physically and psychologically.

"When I reached 180 pounds, I knew I had to do something. I just had no energy," Marsha recalls. "My mother, who also has a weight problem, told me I had to get my weight under control now, because after 35 it would only get worse. I was really desperate."

About this time, a new weight loss program opened in Marsha's town. It was Nutri System Weight Loss Center, one of the nation's largest chains of weight reducing offices. It made wonderful claims—guaranteeing quick, safe, permanent weight loss.

With her husband and mother pushing, a very reluctant Marsha signed up at the center. She admits to being very leery. She had tried many diets in the past and she didn't want to risk another failure. "After losing five or 10 pounds, I would stop losing and put it right back on," Marsha says.

Marsha's skepticism proved entirely unfounded. "It was the best money I ever spent in my life," she says. "I lost 45 pounds! It changed my life!"

The loss of 45 pounds has brought about a dramatic change in Marsha's appearance. She lost seven inches from her waist and another seven from her hips. She's thrown away her old size 18 and 20 pants and now slips easily into a size 12.

Marsha's remarkable transformation has inspired her whole family to follow her example. "My husband joined Nutri/System. He lost 36 pounds in 45 days! My mother joined and she has lost 24 pounds so far. A cousin joined and lost 20 pounds."

Across the nation, tens of thousands of overweight Americans have achieved equally dramatic results with Nutri/System. Nutri/System works where all else fails because it is a professionally supervised, comprehensive approach to the problem of obesity.

At 180 lbs. Marsha Taylor was wearing size 18 and 20 pants and felt she looked twice her age.

45 lbs. lighter after Nutri/System, Marsha lost seven inches from her waist, another seven off her hips and now slips easily into size 12 clothes!

Nutri/System leaves nothing to chance. It includes a sensational food program that takes all the guesswork out of dieting, behavior education classes, personalized counseling, optional exercise and an amazing long-term maintenance program. It backs its claim with a written guarantee.

The program starts with setting an individual goal. In determining what weight is best for each client, Nutri/System utilizes its exclusive Weightminder computer, which weighs such factors as age, physical activity and body type. The computer also provides a target date for achieving the goal.

Clients receive a written guarantee stating they will achieve the goal in the predicted number of days or they remain in the program at no extra cost.

With Nutri/System losing pounds is quick and easy. Many, such as Marsha's husband, Steve, lose nearly a pound a day. Marsha's progress was slower. "But I always saw results. I kept losing weight and was never discouraged," she says.

As people vary, so do their weight losses. Nutri/System evaluates each client on an individual basis to insure maximum weight loss in a minimum amount of time.

Nutri/System makes weight loss easy and painless with its own line of gourmet-quality foods that are high in protein and nutrition, but extremely low in calories.

"I was very surprised and pleased with the food," Marsha says. "I expected it to be pretty blah, but it tastes fine. I couldn't believe it was so tasty. There's plenty of variety, so you can pick the meals you like best."

Best of all Marsha says she was never hungry. "I was satisfied. I can honestly say that I never had a hunger pain. And I never had a headache! With the other diets, I always had atrocious headaches."

Marsha was never hungry because she ate three satisfying meals a day, plus some delicious snacks. "I loved the fudge cupcakes, that was a real surprise," she says. And she had a choice of many different beef, veal, poultry, pork and seafood entrees.

All Nutri/System foods are a snap to fix. It's all pre-measured in individual portions that only have to be heated and served. This was an important plus for Marsha who has three young children of her own and babysits for two other youngsters. She could make her own meals in minutes with no fuss or fancy recipes.

"After only three weeks on the diet, I felt great," Marsha says. "My energy level was high, and I really felt like a new person."

Perhaps, the most rewarding part of the program for Marsha were the weekly behavior education classes. "I received an entire education," she says. "The instructor was excellent. You learn to seek out all your bad eating habits, and they work with you to change them. I learned a lot about myself. I came to realize that I was picking and tasting all the time. I wasn't aware of it, but I was eating in the living room, eating in the car. I was hiding food and sneaking it. It was a real awakening for me."

Marsha also took advantage of Nutri/System's optional home exercise program and devised her own routine.

Losing weight came easy for Marsha. She wondered if she would be able to keep the pounds from returning. Here is where Nutri/System stands head-and-shoulder above any other reducing program. The center provides an entire year of counseling, support and classes after a client reaches his proper weight.

It's been several months since Marsha reached her weight goal. "Thanks to the maintenance program I'm doing great. I haven't put back any weight. In fact, right now I weigh 132 pounds. That's a pound less than my goal!"

"I've really changed my eating habits," Marsha explains. "I know what to eat and how to eat. I have no problems."

Marsha says there have been some wonderful changes in her life. People are constantly giving her compliments on her new appearance. "The nicest compliment I get is, 'You look years younger,'" she smiles. "One day my seven year old daughter, put her arms around me. She looked at me and said, 'Gee Mom, I can reach around you and give you a hug and touch my hands together!'"

There's the joy of buying stylish clothes that fit right and look good. "When I was heavy sometimes my husband would say let's go out shopping and you can buy a new dress. Well, I'd go shopping and get more depressed."

It's hard to believe that Marsha was ever depressed. She has an outgoing, bubbly personality these days. "I was very different when I was heavy. I didn't want to socialize. I didn't even want to go back home to visit my family."

She not only avoided people, Marsha says she avoided mirrors and large store windows where she could see her reflection. She lost that self-counsciousness when she shed those 45 pounds. These days Marsha Taylor is a very secure, happy and very slender new person.

No one wins nuclear war

When it comes to nuclear arms, no president in recent times has seemed quite as bellicose as Ronald Reagan. The idea held by some administration officials that we could actually win a nuclear war, and the president's stubborn refusal to disavow a nuclear first-use, make the apocalyptic scenarios of 20 years ago — remember "Dr. Strangelove" and "On the Beach"? — seem not so dated.

...To help prevent accidental war, the president wants to improve the Washington-Moscow hotline and will seek more notification before nuclear missiles are tested.

Both are fine ideas. The only thing more idiotic than an intentional nuclear war would be an unintentional one.

But these small tokens of nuclear concern are olive branches made of plastic. They are easy and they are sensible — and should be done — but they don't get to the root of the problem.

Reagan and his band of neo-brinksmen must understand: No one will win a nuclear war, and avoidance of a nuclear buildup is in the best interests of both the Soviet Union and the United States.

...As Jimmy Carter noted during his recent trip to Europe, our image as the world's strongest supporter of arms control is slipping away. Until negotiators in Geneva stop comparing apples and oranges, Carter said — "rather than the variation in the size of oranges" — those talks will go nowhere. Neither nation can afford to fail in Geneva.

A lousy defense weapon

The president's public relations ploy in renaming the MX the "peacekeeper" doesn't change the fact that it is a $30 billion disaster, especially in the closely-spaced basing, or dense pack, deployment approved by the White House Monday.

The missile itself, if it works, is a deadly accurate, silo-busting weapon that could prompt the Soviets to put their missile force on hair-trigger alert. Its basing mode, on the other hand, is unlikely to resist a determined Soviet first strike. The MX, in other words, is a perfect offensive weapon, but a lousy defensive weapon.

Let him (Reagan) know what you think of spending $30 billion on such a lemon. Let him know that the American people won't be taken for a ride any longer — that we simply can't afford it.

Finish immigration bill

One of the major items on the agenda when Congress returns to work Nov. 29 is the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration bill.

The bill, designed to combat illegal immigration, has been approved by the Senate. It awaits action on the House floor, having moved through the Judiciary Committee just before Congress recessed for the election campaign.

Quick consideration is needed so a conference committee can reconcile differences between the House and Senate versions in time to assure passage before adjournment.

This is one of the pieces of business Congress should finish during the lame-duck session. The problem of illegal aliens has grown rapidly in recent years and if this opportunity to improve immigration procedures is missed, the new Congress will have to start all over again in January.

A paper ties a region together

A daily newspaper, some wise media critic has observed, is one of the few institutions in modern America that cuts across a society vertically. It touches people of different geographic locations, occupations, ages and sex, income and lifestyle patterns, and binds them to their community and each other.

That binding is one of the particular functions of a paper like The Times-News, because it serves not only a central community (Twin Falls), but an entire region of diverse communities and interests.

For the beet farmer west of Hammett, the art dealer in Ketchum, the potato processor in Burley and the cattle rancher near Jackpot, The Times-News delivers a regional news report that attempts to tell each what's going on elsewhere in the valley.

In the past several months, we've been planning and making changes in our regional report, designed to boost readership outside of Twin Falls proper.

First, we expanded our "Valley Neighbors" page from a partial press run, covering the northern and western parts of the valley, to a full press run covering the whole region.

We've created a new staff position, that of regional editor, and filled it with Charlie Spencer, who is new to the Magic Valley, but a native of Grangeville, where his family has been involved in ranching for years.

CHARLES SPENCER
leads regional coverage

A graduate of the University of Idaho, Spencer has nearly a decade of journalism experience as a reporter and editor at Caldwell and on several papers in Alaska, where, most recently, he was the co-publisher of a weekly paper at Valdez. We think he has an ideal background to lead our expanded regional effort.

Two experienced Times-News staff members, Bonnie Baird Jones and Kelly Everitt, will work with Spencer on regional news. In the next several months, you'll begin to see more and more regional news in the paper, as we add correspondents in a number of communities and expand our coverage of regional events and issues.

By the way, we're looking for additional correspondents all through the valley, so if you're interested in writing and think you'd like to do some with us, contact Spencer here at The Times-News.

Our regional-news changes reflect our changing sense of how Magic Valley residents use their daily newspaper. We know, for example, that a strong local news report, which covers many smaller communities on a frequent basis, is an important ingredient in what you say you want in a daily newspaper.

We think that report should contain news of your community — its government, schools, business and sports in particular — and that has been the ongoing emphasis of our regional coverage to date.

Now, we hope to give you additional coverage in those areas, as well as news on issues that tie the valley together, such as land use, water resources, agriculture and education. We think the combination will be a stronger news product that will benefit you all the more.

Refurbishing the old weapons image

WASHINGTON -- The Washington Answer Man, breathless and festooned with braid and brass, has just returned from the Pentagon, where he claims to have uncovered a major new military development.

Question: Tell us, sir, is it a new weapons breakthrough? Perhaps a missile system that can be based in the back yard of the White House without disturbing the Rose Garden?

Answer Man: No, my boy, something even more exciting. We are looking at a policy change of cosmic proportions that will permit us to catch up with the Soviet arms buildup. We are, for your information, about to enter the era of "nice" weapons.

Question: Explain, please.

Answer Man: Image, my boy, image. Years ago, Harry Truman realized he wasn't going to squeeze much money out of Congress for the War Department, so he merged the services and renamed them the Defense Department. It was a stroke of public relations genius worth billions in military appropriations.

But our more recent leaders have lacked that kind of imagination. They have given weapons belligerent names like "Titan" and "Sidewinder" that scared the daylights out of congressmen and the public.

But now, with a breath-taking intuitive leap -- by deciding to name our new super missile "Peacekeeper" -- the Pentagon has discovered how to get all the guns and bombs it wants.

Question: And that is?

Answer Man: To give the weapons peaceful names that don't frighten people. For example, the new class of nuclear submarines now carry the name "Trident," which as you know is that wicked, three-pronged spear old Neptune carries.

That's scary. Instead, they should designate the new subs "Loveboat." Who will be alarmed by that?.

Now, as you know, many weapons are named to honor historical figures, but so many of them have been warriors that the vessels automatically take on a bellicose character.

Why not name them after famous men of peace? We could call the Main Battle tank, for example, the "Gandhi Tractor." The M16 rifle could be called the "Schweitzer." And we can turn the tables on the pacifists by labeling the standard issue bayonet, "Peacenik."

The B1 bomber also needs a new image. It could be dubbed the "Mary Poppins." We also could associate the Cruise missile with something well loved from childhood — the "Tootsie Roll" for example.

Question: But some of these weapons are real horrors.

Answer Man: All in the way you look at them. It might be frightening to watch an armored personnel carrier rumble into your town, but what if it carried a sign on the side that said, "Welcome Wagon?"

People talk about the bad things weapons do, but nobody accentuates the positive. Wouldn't the neutron bomb sound friendlier if it was called "The Property Saver?" And Agent Orange also has had a bad press. People will look at it in an altogether different way if it is labeled "The Gardener's Friend."

Question: I'm beginning to get the idea. In fact, I even have a suggestion for a new name for the Pentagon.

Answer Man: "Friendship House?"

Question: "Chock Full O' Nuts."

Burger's concerns for judicial system go unheeded

CHIEF JUSTICE BURGER
try this, try that

WASHINGTON -- Warren Earl Burger, chief justice of the United States, projects a kind of cartoonist's image of conservatism. Color his hair silver; draw his figure portly. The image reflects the man; with few exceptions his opinions have been models of strict construction and judicial restraint. No question about it: He's a conservative.

Is that so? If by "conservative" we mean a person who prefers the old and tried to the new and untried, Burger is practically a Bolshevik. In his recent address before the Arthur Vanderbilt memorial dinner in New York, the chief ignited a string of firecracker ideas -- radical ideas -- for changes in our judicial system. He recalled the inventive Leonardo da Vinci, whose notes were larded with reminders to "try this" and "try that."

"Some of that spirit of da Vinci," said Burger, "must animate our profession today."

The problem facing our judicial system is a problem of overload. The causes can be easily defined. Over the past 15 or 20 years, Congress has opened a hundred new fields of litigation -- civil rights, for example, and the environment -- and hordes of litigants have set up their tents and gone camping in the courts. In these areas precedents are few; at both the trial and the appellate levels, judges must hack out new paths.

As Burger noted, ours is the most litigious society on earth. Our national pastime isn't baseball; it's the lawsuit. State and federal courts are glutted with civil actions. The Supreme Court has to give at least cursory attention to 4,000 petitions a year. The overload grows steadily worse, and the quality of jurisprudence must inevitably decline. If "breakdown" is to be avoided, in Burger's view, some major innovations must be tried.

For example: A new way must be sought to cope with the protracted cases that may take six or seven months to try. Such cases, numbering about 164 this year, impose severe hardships on jurors. Empaneling competent jurors becomes a difficult task. Would some new process of arbitration be better?

Other forms of civil litigation cry out for simplification. It often is said, Burger remarked, that we tend to try cases twice -- once in prolonged pretrial interrogatories, and again months later in court. Abuse of the discovery process imposes costly burdens upon the parties. One remedy, he thought, might be for judges to impose "disciplinary monetary sanctions" on attorneys guilty of the abuse.

Burger voiced other ideas calculated to strike terror into the hearts of plaintiffs' lawyers. Is there really any need, he inquired, to have personal injury and property damage cases tried in the courts at all? Why not dispose of these claims as claims for workmen's compensation are handled, by administrative agency?

The federal system employs 229 judges to handle bankruptcy cases. At least in the initial stages, couldn't most of the bankrupt estates be administered non-judicially?

How long must we wait, Burger asked, to amend the rule of diversity jurisdiction? At present, federal courts must hear the kind of damage suit that results when a driver who lives in Newark collides with a driver who lives in New York.

"We must not cling slavishly to the status quo," said Burger. "There must be a better reason for doing things than that hackneyed expression, 'But we've always done it that way.'"

Perhaps out of deference to his predecessors and colleagues on the Supreme Court, Burger made no mention in his address of the court's own contributions to the judicial overload. The court has an unfortunate habit of taking cases that are not ripe for decision; it fritters away its time on cases that lack constitutional dimension; individual justices too often feel compelled to draft long dissenting or concurring opinions that serve their consciences well but serve the law poorly.

Burger's revolutionary suggestions, sound as they are, may not impress an indifferent Congress; state legislatures, dominated by lawyers, are likely to be equally slow in embracing drastic reforms. For all of the chief's eloquence, the prospect is that the overload will grow until one day the fuse blows.

Hodel faces tough questions

By ROBERT SANGEORGE
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Acting Energy Secretary Donald Hodel faces a Senate confirmation hearing this week that will focus on his costly and controversial push for nuclear power development in the Pacific Northwest.

Environmental groups are leading the opposition to President Reagan's nomination of Hodel to succeed Secretary James Edwards, who resigned last month. Opposition to Hodel's nomination centers on his turbulent term as head of the Bonneville Power Administration from 1972-77.

Hodel's advocacy of a five-reactor power project sparked a firestorm of criticism in the Northwest when two of the plants were canceled, leaving the Washington Public Power Supply System with a debt of $7.4 billion in construction costs and interest payments.

DON HODEL
Questions on past policies

In addition, the general program incurred an estimated $24 billion in cost overruns.

A major newspaper in the region, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, called the project "the world champion money-wasting boondoggle."

But the current Bonneville administrator, Peter Johnson, asserted that Hodel "left a reputation as a strong manager" at the regional power agency.

Hodel, 47, was nominated Nov. 5. Congress was not in session at that time and Reagan granted him a recess appointment as acting energy secretary. The Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee meets Wednesday to question Hodel.

Since the nomination, an informal coalition of environmental groups has worked to make his confirmation hearing as tough as possible, although there is little chance he will be rejected.

Hodel is likely to have a strong ally in its committee chairman, Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho. But Democratic panel members, including feisty Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, are expected to grill him on the nuclear power controversy and his close association with Interior Secretary James Watt.

The Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth, the Solar Lobby and Environmental Action are among the groups opposing Hodel — both because of the nuclear power issue and his previous job as interior undersecretary, where he pushed through many of Watt's controversial programs.

"Rather than compromise after the election, the administration is committing itself to continued confrontation on energy and environmental issues" with Hodel's nomination," argued Rafe Pomerance of Friends of the Earth.

The anti-Hodel groups have distributed copies of bluntly worded speeches he made during the 1970s attacking the environmental movement. In a 1975 address to the City Club of Portland, Ore., he accused environmentalists of mounting "a crusade to stop all development in this country."

Environmental groups have "fallen into the hands of a small, arrogant faction that is dedicated to bringing our society to a halt . . . They are the anti-producers, the anti-achievers," he contended.

Loner's trial set today

LAPORTE, Ind. (UPI) — An offbeat loner charged with a small town's "crime of the century" goes on trial today, hours before grieving citizens bury the popular mayor he is accused of assassinating.

Harold W. Lang, 30, has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to an attack on LaPorte Mayor A. J. Rumely, who died Thursday of bullet wounds inflicted in an early morning raid nearly six months ago.

The mayor's wife, Frances, 68, also was killed. She was found sprawled across the Rumelys' bed, clutching a jury-rigged handgun silencer prosecutors charge Lang used in a point-blank range attack on the sleeping couple.

They charge Lang was enraged that Rumely refused to help him return to a job as a biochemist in the city's sewage treatment facility, a job Lang lost after an argument with a supervisor.

Tylenol case suspect denies link to murder

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A person purporting to be Tylenol extortion suspect James W. Lewis asserts in a seven-page, hand-printed letter to the Kansas City Star that he was innocent of a 1978 murder police claim he committed.

The letter was received by the Star on Saturday, one day after the Chicago Tribune received a similar letter signed by Robert Richardson, an alias Lewis used while in Chicago. Both letters were postmarked Nov. 23 in New York.

Lewis, 36, was charged in Chicago with attempted extortion in connection with a letter sent to the makers of Tylenol demanding $1 million "to stop the killing." Authorities also want him for questioning in seven Chicago area deaths from cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules.

The Star letter did not mention the Tylenol murders, but did include a photocopy of a recent news magazine's article on the Tylenol extortion letter. It also included a photocopy of a Missouri driver's license purporting to be Lewis'.

The Star letter, written in the form of an article and bearing the title "A Moral Dilemma," attacks the investigation by Kansas City police into the death of Raymond M. West.

Navy turns on lights for island

HONOLULU (UPI) — The Navy worked Sunday to hook up a portable 1,500-kilowatt generator to help turn on the lights of Kauai, whose 39,000 residents have been mostly without power since the island was swept by Hurricane Iwa.

Officials temporarily abandoned a plan to employ the nuclear submarine Indianpolis, which arrived Saturday in Nawiliwili Harbor, as a floating power station.

Alton Miyamoto, a Kauai Electric Co. manager, said that hooking up the sub to the Lihue power plant would take a full day and require too many workers who were needed for other repair work.

Instead, he said, the portable generator will be used to jump start the Lihue power plant and thus restore power to most of the island. The generator system arrived on Oahu Friday night from California and was shipped Saturday to Kauai by barge.

The main force of Hurricane Iwa hit Kauai and the small island of Nihau last Tuesday night and also ravaged parts of Oahu—Total damage was estimated at least $250 million.

At Lihue, William Legro said, "It resembles Beirut. It's like a war scene. People are crouching in doorways, wide-eyed in shock, trying to hold on to the last scraps of their pride."

"Then there are clusters of people in driveways with notebooks and binders — insurance adjustors."

Ten thousand C-rations were sent to Kauai Sunday by the Army. The Red Cross and the Salvation Army also were distributing food.

President Reagan paved the way for federal assistance to state and local governments and to individuals by declaring Kauai, Oahu and Nihau to be major disaster areas.

Storm-struck private isle still closed

HONOLULU (UPI) — The tiny island of Nihau, closed to outsiders since the Robinson family purchased it more than a century ago, remained inaccessible to visitors Sunday, five days after being ravaged by Hurricane Iwa.

Although Iwa passed directly over the 18-mile-long island at the northern tip of the Hawaiian Islands, the Robinson family refused to allow government officials in to assess damage.

Even Gov. George Ariyoshi, Kauai Mayor Eduardo Malapit and state Civil Defense officials had to conduct an aerial survey of damage the day after the hurricane slammed through the Hawaiian chain.

Over the years, the family has refused repeated requests from journalists to visit their private haven.

A spokesman for the family told officials that everyone came through the storm all right.

The Red Cross estimated that 20 homes on the island were destroyed and another 160 were damaged, statistics that would indicate almost all 226 residents — mostly native Hawaiians — were severely affected by the storm.

Although no other damage estimates were available, Ariyoshi included Nihau in his emergency declaration Friday as eligible for state aid since it is officially part of Kauai County.

A veil of mystery surrounds the isolated island because of the Robinson's protective attitude.

According to local historians, King Kamehameha sold Nihau to one Elizabeth Sinclair and her family more than a century ago.

All of the island's 226 residents are thought to work on the ranch owned by the Robinson family. The workers may be the last bastion of a pure Hawaiian culture.

They speak Hawaiian, with English as their second language, and they live without gas, electricity, indoor plumbing, post offices, doctors or dentists.

What's what

Countless western tales depict the young gunfighter as too quick on the trigger for the slower aging gunfighter. That's wrong, evidently. British researchers electronically timed the trigger-pull reactions of men under age 21 and men between 45 and 50. The youngsters checked out at 0.25 seconds, the oldsters faster at 0.21.

Most expensive place in the world to buy a car, any car, is Singapore. An unadorned standard costs about $17,710. Blame high import duties. That local government doesn't want to put up with traffic trouble.

RETIREMENT

Q. Americans who retire abroad go mostly to which countries?

A. In order: Mexico, Canada, Italy, Philippines, Greece, West Germany and the United Kingdom.

Q. Does Japan have a "Mafia"?

A. Of sorts. It's called the "Yakuza."

Q. Is there any country in the world where the men generally live longer than the women?

A. Only Guatemala.

Q. Where'd we get the word "quack" for an unqualified doctor?

A. From the old Dutch "quacksalver" meaning charlatan.

BUBBLEGUM

To get your bright child's bubblegum out of clothing, put said clothing in the freezer overnight, then hit it a quick lick with a hammer. To get your bright child's bubblegum off a sidewalk, spray it with Freon, then whack it with that hammer. If the bubblegum is in your bright child's hair, give it some thought. Might rub it with peanut butter, that works.

Dear Abby

Lifeguard in over head

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm so confused I can't think straight. Last summer I started going with a lifeguard, "L," treated me really nice and I thought we had something special. I'm only 15 and a virgin, so I told "L" I wouldn't sleep with him. He said he loved me too much to pressure me, although he wanted me very much.

The real problem is that while "L" was going with me, he was having sex with a 20-year-old girl who would give it to him. Well, he got her pregnant, and she and her mom are giving him a hard time. (They want marriage.)

He told me himself that he was just using this girl, and she practically asked to be used. Being only human, he couldn't turn her down. "L" is only 18 and has his whole life ahead of him, but he may have to marry this girl to give the baby a name.

Should I stick with him through all this mess? He says he loves me and I believe him. My parents thought he was a real nice kid and they keep asking why he hasn't been around to see me. What should I say? They would never understand.

Please help me decide what to do about him.

— THE GIRL IN THE BLUE BIKINI

DEAR GIRL: Do yourself a favor and say goodbye to "L." He has a lot of growing up to do. I hope he becomes a man before he becomes a father, because he's facing a heavy responsibility. Tell your parents the truth, and consider yourself lucky to be rid of him.

DEAR ABBY: Your column asking people to write to a lonely serviceman (or woman) prompts this letter.

Back in 1965, the Rockford Morning Star in Rockford, Ill., published the names and addresses of local servicemen who were serving overseas. Patriotic citizens were urged to "drop these lonely boys a Christmas card to let them know you care."

I was a senior in high school at the time and always enjoyed writing letters, so I wrote to several young men. (I had as many as 30 pen pals all over the world at one time.)

In August of 1966, one of the fellows I had corresponded with while he was in Vietnam came home, and we met. His name was Ray Cantwell, and he is a very special man. He is also the father-of-our-two-wonderful-children, and my husband of 15 years as of Nov. 25.

How's that for a storybook romance?

— SALLY CANTWELL, IN LINCOLN, NEB.

DEAR SALLY: Beautiful! Happy anniversary to you and Ray. Moral: "Cast thy bread upon the waters" — and you may get wedding cake in return.

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to add my two cents' worth to the tipping flap. I'm for doing away with the tipping system entirely. Why should waitresses have to depend on the generosity of the customers in order to make a living wage? Their employers should pay them — not the public.

— THE LAST WORD

DEAR LAST: If a restaurateur were to eliminate the tipping system and pay the waiters and waitresses a living wage, he would have to charge far more than what he now charges. And that's more than most people are willing to swallow.

Therapy patients treat themselves

TWIN FALLS — Shirley Harris of Twin Falls is regaining her dexterity through what looks like a child's game.

She sits before an upright peg board, studded with nuts and bolts. Patiently, she unscrews the nuts and removes the bolts from the board. When all are removed, she begins plugging them back in.

Her left hand moves awkwardly as she performs the simple task. A thin scar, stretching from her elbow down her forearm, shows that no slight accident brought her to the Hand Rehabilitation Center in Twin Falls.

In September, Harris, her husband and her father went camping in the backcountry of the Sawtooth Mountains, about 13 miles from the highway. She and her husband backpacked in, while her father rode a horse.

While riding the horse on a side trip, Harris was bucked off. She fell on her elbow, which snapped from the stress. Nearly fainting from the excruciating pain, she stumbled the mile back to the base camp. That night, her husband hiked out to get help, while her father fed her aspirin as they waited for the dawn.

Her husband contacted Dr. Paul Miles, who drove to the area and hiked to the camp to treat Harris. She rode the horse out and was taken to a hospital, where she underwent surgery on her arm, 27 hours after the fall.

Her severely fractured elbow required four pins during surgery. Because of muscle and nerve damage, the movement of her wrist and fingers were affected. She could bend her elbow only slightly.

Harris began seeing Judy Trotter, an occupational therapist who specializes in treating hand injuries, at her office at 800 Falls Ave.

"You get to play with toys; it's better than kindergarten," Harris says.

Many of the tools of the hand therapy business appear to be trifles for tots. A saucer of "Silly Putty" sits on Trotter's desk; patients squeeze and manipulate it to increase gripping skills. Trotter also has various boards, laced with wooden pegs; the pegs are moved from hole to hole to build coordination. Ordinary clothespins are used in another strange-looking contraption.

Trotter, whose light manner covers a steel-hard resolution, supervises as Harris performs some seemingly easy tasks, like "walking" her fingers up a ladder-like object nailed to the office wall. She measures the woman's grip strength with a electronic machine, shouting like a giddy cheerleader to get Harris to "grip harder, harder, go, go, go."

While Harris tackles the nuts-and-bolts pegboard, Trotter performs some "hands-on" therapy with Frieda Edwards of Twin Falls, who broke her wrist in a bad fall and needs to regain movement in her fingers.

Trotter grasps Edwards' hand firmly in her own, and slowly manipulates the joints.

"Bend your fingers! Now, hold it there!" she commands. Edwards' face remains placid, but her fingers flutter with the strain. Harris frequently throws in a word of encouragement.

Trotter often schedules group therapy sessions. She says the patients boost each other's spirits and exchange recovery tips.

Today, Edwards will get a new splint. Using a space-age plastic that becomes extremely pliable when heated, Trotter makes "custom" splints for certain patients.

Edwards has been wearing one that holds her wrist in a slightly bent-back position. It looks awkward, but the slight pressure helps to stretch the muscles and allows Edwards to regain more wrist movement.

Trotter has made another one that will help Edwards' fingers. This splint fits snugly around Edwards' forearm. Rubber bands are hooked at the wrist and attached to tiny leather straps. The straps are slipped around her fingers; the rubber bands pull the fingers downward.

The gentle pressure is what Trotter calls "passive" exercise: "Active" exercise comes when Edwards moves the fingers herself. Such splints, to be worn at night or a few hours each day, work on the muscles when the patient is not conscious of it.

The splints, with their nobs, hooks and violin-string rubber bands, do look unusual, however. One of Trotter's patients calls his a "handoline."

The aim of hand therapy, Trotter explains, is to "get patients to function to as near normal limits as possible."

Many of her patients have suffered from farm-related accidents in which limbs were caught in machines. Others have injured themselves in falls or recreational activities.

•See THERAPY on Page A9

An M.C. Escher painting adorns the wall of Judy Trotter's office, left. Trotter's specialty as a therapist is important to an area like the Magic Valley where hands are often injured in farming accidents, above

Varied backgrounds for council applicants

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The 11 applicants for the Twin Falls City Council seat being vacated Jan. 1 come from a wide background of careers, pursuits and interests.

All 11 will be interviewed this evening by City Council members, who will then make a final choice or narrow the field.

Councilman Bud Cheney is retiring Jan. 1, after nine years on council. A year remains on his term, and City Council members have asked applicants to be prepared to run for election after the term expires.

Council members are paid $327 a month and receive medical insurance coverage, according to Mayor Chris Talkington.

The applicants and some information about each — taken in part from the applicants' letters of intent and resumes — are:

• Lee Helder, 35, ran for City Council in 1981. A real-estate broker with InterMountain Properties of Twin Falls, he has a master's degree in public administration and is vice president of the Twin Falls Board of Realtors, with responsibility for governmental affairs.

He has served on three national committees with the Farm and Land Institute of the National Association of Realtors.

Helder grew up in Twin Falls and returned here after extensive travel as an Air Force pilot.

In his letter seeking the appointment, Helder said he "would like to put my intra-personal motivation and educational training to work in local government here in Twin Falls."

In his 1981 campaign, Helder stressed that council should encourage growth of the local business sector.

• Mike Cross, 41, manages Chelsea's Restaurant in Twin Falls and is a licensed river guide. He came to Twin Falls in 1974 as an ironworker for the Perrine Bridge construction and liked the area so well, he decided to remain.

He ran for council in 1981, and in his campaign, he promised that if elected he would take a first-hand look at all issues coming before council.

"I have been encouraged by a number of citizens to put my name in the hat for this appointment," Cross wrote. "I have no commitment to any particular group or organization. I would serve on the council freely, without any bias or preconceptions as to any issue."

• Jack Q. Miller, 56, is president of P & M Building Systems. He moved to Twin Falls 13 years ago from Chicago.

In August of 1978, he was appointed to the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission. In 1980, he was appointed to served on the Highway Traffic and Safety Commission. In 1981 he ran for City Council.

He has completed a two-year term on the board of directors of the Kiwanis Club and has served as finance chairman of the American Red Cross.

In his 1981 campaign, he emphasized the need for more volunteer and civic-group involvement in local government.

"I have a genuine interest in this community, and the city election of 1983 will find me running for office again," he wrote.

• Gene Gamet, 49, is a self-employed drywall contractor, with 33 years of experience in the business. A resident of Twin Falls for 23 years, he serves on the Twin Falls Parks and Recreation Commission Board. He spent 13 years organizing and running the Twin Falls Junior League baseball program. He retired from the position this year.

Gamet ran unsuccessfully for council in 1979.

In his campaign, Gamet said council should be more responsive to the wishes of the public, and he criticized cuts made in the city Fire Department and supported increased funding for the municipal parks and recreation programs.

Gamet said he decided to apply for appointment this year because "I'm really going to have more time on my hands, and I feel I could do them a good job."

• Gary D. Elchelberg, 36, has been an architect in the office of Harald E. Gerber since 1970. A member of the American Institute of Architects, he served as vice president of the eastern section of the Idaho chapter in 1982 and has been elected as president for 1983.

His family moved to Gooding in 1948, and he graduated from Gooding High School in 1964. He moved to Twin Falls in early 1980.

Elchelberg is an active 4-H leader and a club officer of the Twin Falls Toastmasters Club.

"It is my belief that a person should not enjoy the benefits of living in a community without contributing to that community," he wrote. "I believe that Twin Falls faces at least two important areas of concerns. Those concerns are budget and growth. My training and experience as an architect should be of value."

• Penny Lalev Crandal, 54, is a self-employed employability consultant, working with attorneys on personal injury suits involving insurance companies, the Social Security Administration and the Veterans Administration.

Her previous jobs have included: counselor with the Idaho Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, director of the Twin Falls Senior Citizen Federation, eligibility examiner for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, news director for a local radio station and an editor for The Times-News.

She has attended the College of Southern Idaho and Idaho State University, and has 128 credit hours in sociology and psychology.

"I have lived in Twin Falls for over 40 years, and through my various occupations am conversant with many aspects of this community and am sincerely interested in its development and welfare," she said.

• Garth Price is self-employed as a home builder, and has lived within six miles of the city center since 1925, except for one year spent managing an Ogden, Utah, motel. He has 36 years of experience in construction, mostly in home building, and has been self-employed for 24 years.

His other job experience includes work in delivery of milk, groceries, fuel oil and gasoline, and in several retail businesses.

"I'm not a crusader. I'm not a joiner. Therefore, my name will not be recognized in civic or fraternal circles," Price wrote.

"I understand builders' problems, code and zoning problems. I have some idea of road-building problems, sewer-line problems."

• Erik L. Andersen, 46, is a full-time real estate salesman, associated with Western Realty in Twin Falls, where he has also acted as assistant office manager and acting office manager.

He graduated from Montana State University in Bozeman, Mont., with a bachelor's degree in commercial science. He moved to Twin Falls in 1963, when he was hired as a seventh-grade social-studies teacher. He later was transferred to the high school, where he taught U. S. history and advanced typing, and also served a stint as a vocational rehabilitation counselor. He later returned to teaching economics and sociology until 1979.

He also is associated with the Kiwanis Club and the Boy Scout program.

"I have become acquainted with many citizens in the community, and feel that I understand their individual concerns, hopes and aspirations for themselves and their community," Andersen wrote.

• W. Loren McCoy, 50, is a director, treasurer, managing agent and comptroller for the Real Estate Securities Corp. of Twin Falls, which buys real-estate contracts, mortgages and deeds of trust.

His other jobs have included: an accountant for Beckstead Cooper Co. of Twin Falls, vice president of investment for the Sierra Life Insurance Co., assistant vice president for Insurance Investment Corp. in Burley and assistant vice president and manager of Continental Western Mortgage of Twin Falls.

He is vice president of the local chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, a national scholastic honorary and a member of Sigma Tau, a national engineering scholastic honorary.

He also served as director of the Twin Falls Jaycees for three years and as president in 1965.

"I have very much enjoyed the amenities of the city for the past 20 years, and would now like to do what little I may to make it even a better place in which to live," McCoy wrote.

• Gale E. Kleinkopf, 42, is a research professor of plant science with the University of Idaho at the Kimberly Research and Extension Center, where he is associate director.

A native of Twin Falls, he attended Twin Falls public schools and the University of Idaho, where he received a bachelor's degree in agricultural chemistry. In 1970, he received a Ph.D. in plant physiology from the University of California. He returned to Twin Falls in 1975.

He wrote that he is seeking the application because, "First, I possess a genuine interest in the policy, programs and operation of the city of Twin Falls. Secondly, I feel I can add a significant component of objective decision-making to the existing council."

• Ernest Vasquez, 48, manages the Douglass Hotel in Twin Falls and is vice chairman of the South Central Community Action Agency board of directors. He has lived in Twin Falls since 1979 and ran for Twin Falls school board in 1979.

Vasquez says he will represent the low-income residents of Twin Falls.

"I'm always concerned with issues facing the city. I think the city is divided on the South Park issue," he said in reference to efforts by South Park residents to have ditches covered and streets improved.

"I don't think we should have a divided city. I know of no other candidates that can unify the city," Vasquez said.

Jerome County tax notices coming soon

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — While Jerome County taxpayers probably didn't mind not getting their tax notices on schedule, Nov. 22, county Treasurer Elsie Childers assured them Friday that the notices are coming.

Childers said the levies have been certified by the Idaho Tax Commission, and they were mailed to her office last Tuesday. Her staff has been working on them since then.

"I hope to be able to mail them out (Wednesday) Dec. 1," she said.

Childers said that although the notices are late, the deadline for payment of first-half taxes, Dec. 20, still stands.

"I wasn't able to get the payment deadline extended," she said, "but this gives taxpayers about 20 days to pay the first installment."

Because several counties took court action to avoid the property-tax assessment increases ordered by the Tax Commission, Jerome County's tax notices were delayed. There are two taxing districts in Jerome County that extend into Twin Falls and Gooding counties, which were both involved in the dispute with the Tax Commission.

This is the second year that Jerome County's tax notices are being prepared on the county's computer system, Childers said.

Several additional workers were in the treasurer's office last week, helping complete the task.

There are about 10,000 notices to be mailed in Jerome County and about $3.5 million in tax money to be collected.

Therapy

•See THERAPY on Page A9

The "toys" she uses in therapy are not half as important as a patient's efforts at home. Cleaning house, cooking, working on a hobby, all these things are as important to recovery as the tasks she puts her patients through in her office, she says.

Trotter repeatedly emphasizes how devastating a hand injury can be.

"Every one of my patients who comes in say, 'I need my hands for my work,'" she says. They also need their hands for basic living, from combing their hair to buttoning a shirt.

Ironically, much of Trotter's work is undoing the healing process. That is, while a hand or limb is immobilized in a cast while a bone heals, unused muscles can stiffen. Bad breaks can also damage muscles, ligaments and nerves. Sometimes, a patient literally has to learn how to move his hand again.

When Tony Madalena of Twin Falls comes in for his daily session, Trotter warms his hand with heat packs. This relaxes the muscles and makes his fingers easier to move. His hand was mangled in a machinery accident, and his nerves were damaged, limiting sensations in his fingertips.

After some hands-on manipulations, Madalena squeezes with another toy, something that looks like a double balloon, to increase his gripping ability.

"Have you tried to pick up small objects?" Trotter asks him. "No? Well, today's the day."

She sets a board, dotted with round pegs in front of him. One senses the embarrassment of the young man, an active sort who hates sitting around the house, as he grips wooden pegs with difficulty. Trotter compares his injury to having to wear a thick glove.

As Madalena fumbles, his face set with concentration, Trotter smiles and gives him encouragement: "It's harder than it looks."

"Yes," he says, relieved, and repeats, "It's harder than it looks."

For many of Trotter's patients, therapy is extremely painful. The smallest movement can be agonizing.

"It's the patient who treats himself, not me," Trotter says. "I'm not the almighty therapist that can cure him. I can show them what to do; he has to make his hand work again. I can't make his hand work for him."

Trotter became interested in hand therapy after she received a degree in occupational therapy from the University of Central Arkansas. From working with a hand surgeon, she received specialized training in hand rehabilitation.

After a year's stay in New Zealand, where she and her pediatrician husband went to find out how socialized medicine worked (not well, she says) the couple moved to Twin Falls about two years ago. She opened her office this summer.

The hardest part of her job is when, despite her and her patient's best effort, she realizes they've done all they can and the hand is far from being normal.

"It's frustrating for a therapist to say, 'That's all I can do for you.'"

Moreover, therapy is a long process. As Harris says, "It's hard to see change everyday. But when you think back two weeks ago. . ."

Despite the pain in her elbow, Harris smiles determinedly as she bends her arm for Trotter, who wants to measure the angle with a special device, a goniometer. The results are recorded and compared, week to week.

The millimeters of extra movement make Harris's eyes bright with pleasure.

"Good. I intend for that thing (she lifts her arm) to work again," she says.

Booms traced to California

MOUNTAIN HOME (UPI) — An investigation by Mountain Home Air Force Base officials concluded they are not responsible for sonic booms that have caused shattered dishes and mental anguish in Salmon, Id. Phil McCarthy said Sunday.

He said Mountain Home could not have caused the blasts that occurred between Nov. 2 and Nov. 11 because the base had no flight activity on that route during that time.

McCarthy said Beale Air Force Base near Marysville, Calif. has accepted responsibility for the two of the blasts, caused by their SR-71 strategic reconnaissance aircraft breaking the sound barrier.

He said the other incidents could have come from a number of sources.

Mike Rice, throwing in title game, is Gem State's top QB

5 Bruins earn Gem honors

IDAHO FALLS — Five members of the state runner-up Twin Falls High Bruins have earned first-team berths on the 1982 All-Gem State Conference football team.

Four Bruins were named to the offensive first unit while one was selected to the defensive unit. The eight conference coaches selected the teams at the conclusion of the regular season, but the announcement of the team was delayed until today because of the state playoffs.

Earning first team offensive honors for the Bruins were linemen D.W. Lindsey and Randy Masoner, wide receiver Brent Standing and quarterback Mike Rice.

Defensive back Mike Ulrich was selected to the first defensive unit.

Rice tied with Bonneville's Kirk Copeland for punter of the year while Standing won the kicker of the year honors. Highland's Terry Hopkings was named coach of the year and Highland's Merrill Hoge was named offensive back of the year.

Highland paced the first-team selections with nine players while seven Skyline players won top honors. Bonneville and Twin Falls each placed five of the first team while Pocatello had two and Blackfoot had one. Minico and Idaho Falls did not have a player named to the first team.

Seahawks shut out Steelers

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle Seahawks look like a new team under their new coach.

The Seahawks, 2-2 overall, raised their record under interim Coach Mike McCormack to 2-0 Sunday with a 16-0 shutout over previously unbeaten Pittsburgh, which was hampered by he absence of star quarterback Terry Bradshaw for most of the game.

Cliff Stoudt replaced Bradshaw midway through the first quarter after the Steelers' veteran sprained his right shoulder. Stoudt finished the game hitting nine passes in 20 attempts for 73 yards and three interceptions, but Steeler Coach Chuck Noll didn't blame the shutout on the reserve quarterback.

"I don't think who our quarterback was is relevant," Noll said. "It looked like we were waiting for the win to come to us."

All but one of Seattle's scores were set up by Steeler fumbles, including the game's only touchdown — an 11-yard pass from Jim Zorn to Paul Johns near the end of the third quarter.

"I made them look really good," Stoudt said. "They don't do anything fancy on defense; they sit back and wait for you to make a mistake, and they capitalize on it."

The last time the Steelers, now 3-1, were shut out was a 6-0 loss to Houston in Dec., 1980.

The shutout was Seattle's first in the Kingdome and only the third in the club's 7-year history.

Zorn completed 14-of-22 passes for 204 yards and Seattle gained 290 total yards.

"The Seahawks played great football today," Noll said. "They executed very well. They had time to throw. They looked like Super Bowl material."

The only score of the first quarter came on Johnson's 35-yard field goal, which capped an 82-yard drive in 13 plays.

Capitalizing on reserve quarterback Cliff Stoudt's inexperience, the Seahawks' secondary picked off two Steeler passes in the second quarter to set up Seattle's other field goals. Stoudt finished the game with 9 completions in 20 attempts for 73 yards and three interceptions. Bradshaw was 5-for-7 for 67 yards before leaving midway through the first quarter.

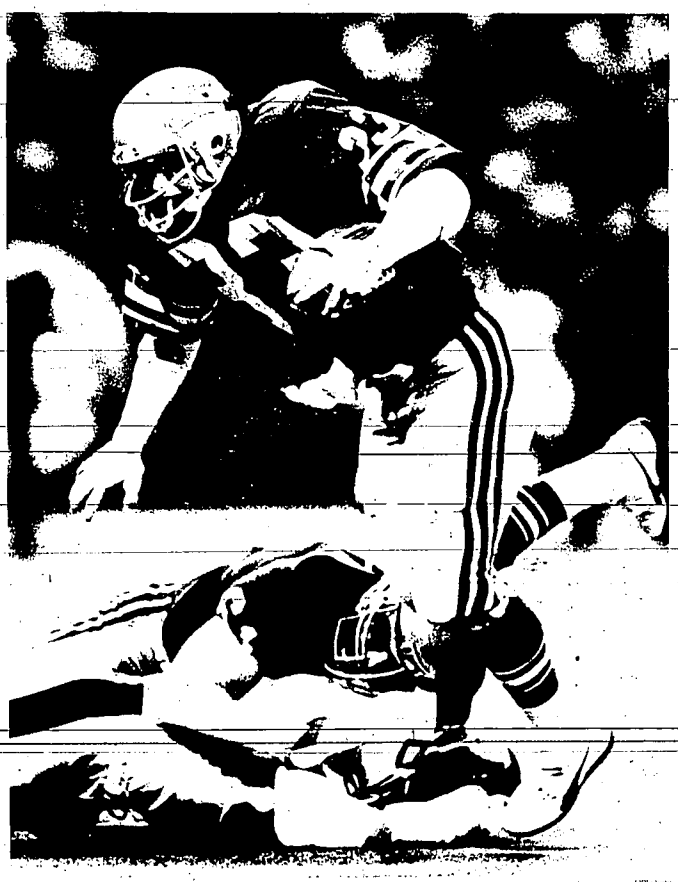

With 5:48 remaining in the second period, Stoudt fired a 49-yard pass intended for Lynn Swann, but cornerback Kenny Easley leaped above Swan for an interception in the Seattle endzone. The Seahawks then drove 50 yards in nine plays as Johnson kicked a 48-yarder with 1:54 remaining in the half.

An interception by linebacker Michael Jackson on the Pittsburgh 36 set up Johnson's final 29-yard field goal with two seconds left in the half.

The Seattle defense continued to dominate in the second half as Pittsburgh turned the ball over twice in the third quarter.

Seahawks' defensive tackle Manu Tulasosopo recovered a mishandled draw play on the Seattle 27 and Zorn then went to the air, completing a 45-yard bomb to wide receiver Steve Largent followed by a 6-yard toss to fullback Dan Doornink.

With 1:49 left in the third quarter, Zorn iced the win with a 11-yard pass to Johns to cap the 68-yard drive in 11 plays.

Bengals stop Raiders

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Los Angeles Raiders were knocked from the unbeaten ranks Sunday for one simple reason -- the Cincinnati Bengals stopped the Raiders' powerful running attack cold.

"Our defense was outstanding," Bengals' Coach Forrest Gregg said after Cincinnati's 31-17 triumph. "We concentrated on their running game and we did a good job shutting them off."

The Raiders came into the game averaging 147 yards rushing per contest. On Sunday, they managed only 33 yards on the ground.

The Raiders' prize rookie, 1981 Heisman Trophy winner Marcus Allen, brought an 86-yard per game average into the game. On Sunday, he had exactly zero net yards in eight carries.

"I have no idea what the Bengals' defensive scheme was," said Allen, "but they did quite well. Maybe they were anticipating me."

Added Raider quarterback Jim Plunkett, "They took our running game away from us. We probably only had one run over 10 yards."

Cincinnati's tough defense also provided some offense, as 14-year veteran Ken Riley intercepted three of Plunkett's passes, running one of them back 56 yards for a touchdown.

"I'm only 35 years old," Riley said, smiling. "But I stay in good condition all year."

The Bengals intercepted Plunkett a total of four times and the Raiders also hurt themselves by being penalized 80 yards.

"We had too many turnovers and too many penalties," said Raiders' Coach Tom Flores. "And that big fullback (Cincinnati's Pete Johnson) gets a lot of yardage."

Johnson rumbled for 129 yards — almost four times what the entire Los Angeles running game produced.

"The more I get the ball, the more I love it," said Johnson, who carried 23 times. "I've been raring to get back (after the strike)."

Johnson scored on a 1-yard run and quarterback Ken Anderson provided two of the other TDs on a 10-yard run and a 3-yard pass as the Bengals upped their record to 3-1. Jim Breech kicked a 35-yard field goal to round out Cincinnati's scoring.

Both of the Raiders' touchdowns came on passes from Jim Plunkett to Cliff Branch — scoring aerials of 34 and 28 yards. The only other points Los Angeles could manage came on a 31-yard field goal by Chris Bahr.

The game was Cincinnati's first home contest since the 57-day players' strike ended and hometown fans showed fairly strong support for the Bengals. There were 59,446 tickets sold for the game and 53,330 fans attended despite rainy weather. The no-show figure was 6,116.

Phillips' putting Stabler at QB proving faultless

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) -- A lot of people wondered about Bum Phillips' sanity when he took Ken Stabler off the scrap heap and installed him as the No. 1 quarterback of the New Orleans Saints.

The move in part was necessitated by injury to young Dave Wilson, who was being groomed as New Orleans' quarterback of the future. At best, it was hoped Stabler would keep the team together long enough for Wilson to recover.

Sunday, for the second straight week after the NFL strike, Stabler provided the leadership as the Saints beat the defending Super Bowl champions San Francisco 49ers 23-20 to run their record to 3-1, second best in the NFC.

Stabler completed 11-of-20 passes for a modest 154 yards, but that didn't even begin to tell how effective he was, which wasn't lost on Phillips.

"Kenny is a big addition to our team," said Phillips of the veteran quarterback. "Of course, his leadership is important, but if he wasn't a good quarterback, I wouldn't care if he was a leader or not. He played a hell of a game."

Stabler threw a 10-yard scoring pass to Wayne Wilson at the end of a textbook 14-play, 99-yard drive late in the opening quarter to set the tone of the game against San Francisco. Later, he directed two other touchdown drives as well as a third that resulted in a 27-yard field goal by Toni Fritsch.

As a result, the Saints are in excellent position to win a playoff berth while the 49ers probably need at least four more victories in the five remaining games to have a shot at defending their title.

Jimmy Rogers scred on a 2-yard run and George Rogers blasted over from the one for the other New Orleans' touchdowns, while the 49ers scored their points on field goals of 40 and 45 yards by Ray Wersching in the first half and two touchdown passes by Joe Montana in the closing minutes that only made the final score close.

Montana's passes covered 12 yards to Jeff Moore and 16 to Russ Francis.

"They're a dramatically improved team," said 49ers' coach Bill Walsh of the Saints. "They played a super game. As for our team, we cannot afford another loss and expect to make the playoffs . . . but you never know."

The defending Super Bowl champion 49ers scored on field goals of 40 and 45 yards by Ray Wersching and on Joe Montana passes of 12 yards to Jeff Moore and 16 to Russ Francis in the closing minutes to pull within three.

Jets' Leahy switches from goat to hero

NEW YORK (UPI) - After nine years as an NFL kicker, Pat Leahy has learned just how fickle a crowd can be.

Leahy trotted onto the field late in the third period Sunday and was greeted by a chorus of boos from the crowd of 53,872 at Shea Stadium. Earlier in the game, he missed two extra point attempts and a 47-yard field goal try and the New York Jets trailed the Green Bay Packers, 13-12.

Leahy calmly connected on a 25-yard field goal to provide the margin of victory as the Jets defeated Green Bay 15-13 and handed the Packers their first loss of the season.

The Jets got two strong stands from their defensive unit in the last eight minutes of the game to hang on for the victory.

"I've heard the boos before. I heard them previously and I'll hear them in the future," Leahy said. "That's the nature of the pro football fan. It's all in the game of football. All I know is that it's over and we won the game. That's all that really counts."

With Green Bay leading 13-12, the Jets took over on their own 48 and moved to the Packers' 7-yard line on Freeman McNeil's 36-yard burst down the right sidelines, setting up Leahy's game-winning kick.

Green Bay stopped New York at its 1-yard line with eight minutes left in the game and had a chance to win, moving to New York's 32. But the Jet defense, ranked No. 1 in the AFC, held and Jan Stenerud's 50-yard field goal attempt fell short with 4:56 remaining.

John Anderson recovered a Mike Augustyniak fumble at the Green Bay 47 with 2:35 left and Green Bay moved to New York's 32. But the Jets pushed Green Bay back and Dickey's 10-yard pass to Paul Coffman was short of the first down marker with 1:42 left in the game.

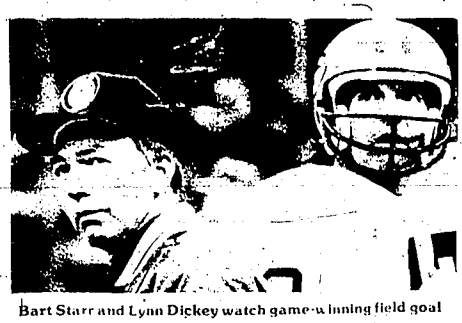

"We got the big plays at the end when we needed them," said Jets' Coach Walt Michaels. "That's the sign of a team maturing. For a layoff of eight weeks, this was as aggressive a football game as I've ever seen and I've been around football for 32 years. If there was lack of conditioning it didn't show today."

Green Bay Coach Bart Starr, whose club was off to its best start since 1966, said the Packers literally handed the game to the Jets.

"Last year, in the last game of the season, they beat us," Starr said. "Today we beat ourselves. We couldn't get untracked in the second half, especially our running game. It was just a lack of consistency."

Richard Todd threw a 23-yard

McEnroe reaches No. 2 spot in all-time Davis Cup wins

GRENOBLE, France (UPI) — John McEnroe established himself as the second most successful Davis Cup player ever to perform for the United States when he won his match Sunday to complete a 4-1 American victory over France.

McEnroe defeated Henri Leconte, 6-2, 6-3, in the concluding match to boost his record in Davis Cup singles to 26 wins and three defeats. This moved him ahead of Bill Tilden's 25-3 record which, ironically, was achieved mainly against France between 1926 and 1930.

Only Arthur Ashe, who as team captain this weekend supervised McEnroe's fourth appearance on the winning side in the final, has more Davis Cup wins for the U.S. with 27. McEnroe is also undefeated in nine Cup doubles matches.

In Sunday's first match, Yannick Noah, with an almost faultless display, salvaged his country's pride by taking France's only point in a 50-minute demolition of Gene Mayer, 6-1, 6-0.

The final day's play was meaningless inasmuch as the U.S. had built an unbeatable 3-0 lead by winning Saturday's doubles, and the concluding singles were reduced to a best-of-three.

The U.S. thus won the Davis Cup for the 28th time, and the fourth time in the last five years.

Against an over-eager, inexperienced opponent who tried to kill every ball and as a result produced a string of crass mis-hits, McEnroe had no trouble whatsoever.

Even when Leconte, within a point of breaking McEnroe's service in the seventh game of the first set, had the American sprawling far behind the baseline and scrambling to retrieve his racket, the Frenchman hit a simple smash out. He never had another chance.

McEnroe, again serving magnificently and even allowing his opponent to display now and again a few classy shots, ran out an easy winner in one hour and 18 minutes.

Allison triumphs

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Bobby Allison of Hueytown, Ala., took the lead from Neil Bonnett with nine laps left and held on to win the 250 NASCAR Winston West race Sunday at Phoenix International Raceway.

From laps 135 to 147 of the 250-kilometer race, Allison followed Bonnett, also of Hueytown. But following a yellow caution flag, Allison was able to pull his Gatorade Chevrolet in front of Bonnett's Buick on the green flag restart.

Hershel McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore., finished third, followed by pole-sitter Joe Ruttman, Newell, N.C.; Jim Robinson, Sylmar, Calif.; and Roy Smith, Victoria, British Columbia.

Hoch takes World Open

KAGOSHIMA, Japan (UPI) — American Scott Hoch shot a 2-under-par 70 in the final round Sunday to win the $245,283 World Open golf tournament by one shot.

Tied for third place after the third round, Hoch wound up with a four-round total of 6-under-par 282 to win first prize money of $46,875.

Clemson nips W. Forest

TOKYO (UPI) — Quarterback Homer Jordan thrilled a crowd of 80,000 with his passing and running Sunday and led Clemson to a 21-17 victory over Wake Forest in the Mirage Bowl.

Jordan, named the Tigers' Most Valuable Offensive Player in the game, set up a 1-yard touchdown run by Kevin Mack with his running and connected with K.D. Dunnwith on a 22-yard TD pass to help the Tigers finish their season with a 9-1-1 record.

Jordan's quarterbacking led Clemson to a 19-10 lead late in the fourth quarter, but the Deacons made a game out of it when quarterback Gary Schofield connected with wide receiver Tim Ryan on a 65-yard pass play in the closing minutes to bring the Deacons within two points.

Although the Deacon defenders stopped Clemson on their own 5-yard line on the kick return, Wake Forest failed to score again and suffered a two-point safety with less than two minutes left in the game when Scofield was sacked behind the goal line by the relentless Tiger defense.

ISU loses season opener

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (UPI) — Sophomore guard Harold Keeling scored 20 points to lead Santa Clara to an 80-69 victory over Idaho State Saturday night in non-conference action.

Santa Clara pulled to a 39-32 lead at the halftime on the strength of the inside play of sophomore center Nick Vanos and the scoring of Keeling.

In the second half, the Bengals rallied to pull within 45-42 with 13:05 remaining, but the Broncos ripped off eight unanswered points and cruised to their second victory against no losses.

Gary Hopkins scored 18 points and Vanos added a career-high of 17 points and 10 rebounds to the Broncos' cause.

Idaho State, 0-1, was led by junior forward Buck Chavez, who scored 19 points.

touchdown pass to Lam Jones in the first period and Augustyniak burst four yards for a New York touchdown in the third period. Lynn Dickey had TD passes of 24 and 23 yards to rookie speedster Phillip Epps for Green Bay's touchdowns.

The Jets, trailing 13-6 at halftime, cut Green Bay's lead to 13-12 early in the third period, moving 61 yards in nine plays.

Todd hit Bruce Harper for 25 yards and Jerome Barkum for 18 to help set up a 1st-and-goal at the Green Bay 4-yard line. Augustyniak blasted through the middle untouched for the score. Leahy, who missed the extra point attempt after the Jets' first TD, had his kick deflected by Gary Lewis and the Packers held a 13-12 lead.

The victory raised the Jets' record to 3-1 and dropped Green Bay to 3-1.

Rams change coach's tune

Malavasi likes defense

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Last week, after watching his Rams lose their third game of the season and ninth in their last 10 games, Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi admitted "the team just might not be very good."

But Sunday, after the Rams defeated the Kansas City Chiefs 20-14, Malavasi changed his tune.

"We're a defensive team and to win we have to have a good defensive performance," he said. "Today we got it. I couldn't be happier with the defense."

While the defense was shutting down the Kansas City attack, Wendell Tyler rushed for two TDs and LeRoy Irvin turned in a dazzling 63-yard punt return for another touchdown to lead the Rams' offense.

After their first win in four games, the Rams must now prepare for a Thursday night game against the NFL champion San Francisco 49ers.

"I don't worry about the playoff race," Malavasi said. "I worry about the next game and the next game is Thursday and that's just three short days of practice away. It's nice to get that first win, but it shouldn't make you relax. I haven't been relaxed in 35 years of football, and I don't think I'll start now."

Irvin's punt return, at 11:06 of the third period, turned out to be the winning touchdown. He fielded the ball on one hop on the Rams' 37, swept around right end and sprinted untouched into the end zone to make the score 20-7. The Rams then missed the extra point attempt.

It was the fourth time in Irvin's four NFL seasons that the 180-pounder from Kansas had returned a punt for a TD, and the first time since 1976 the Chiefs have given up a TD on a punt return.

"I wasn't trying to catch it because the guy was right on me," Irvin explained. "It took a short bounce and I was backing up to stay away from it, but it popped right back in my hands.

"All week us younger guys felt we had let the veterans down. They worked long and hard to establish a winning tradition here and now it's our job to step in and help them win again."

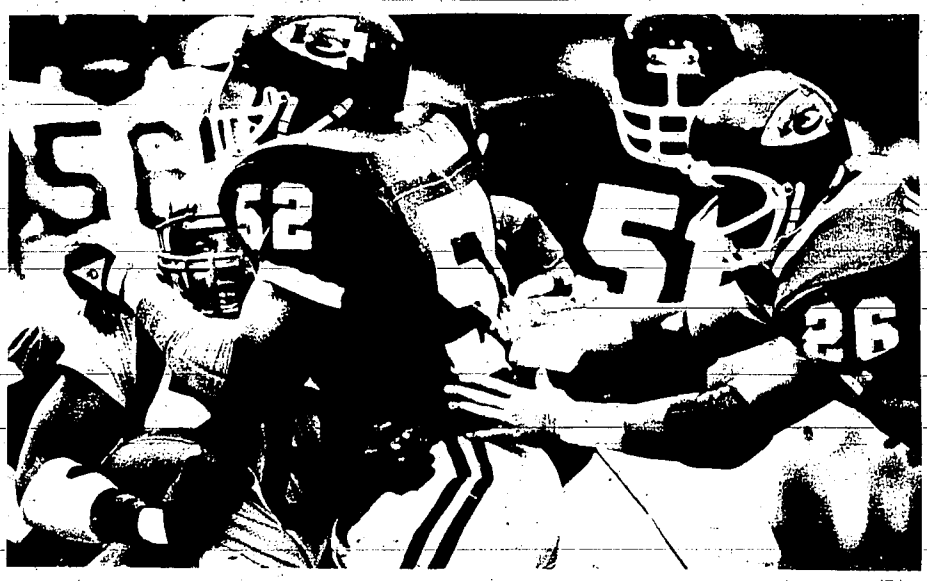

Kansas City, also 1-3, made the score 20-14 with 11:07 left in the game when Steve Fuller drilled a perfect pass through three defenders into the arms of J.T. Smith in the end zone for a 35-yard scoring play.

Kansas City got a final chance to win the game when Charles Jackson recovered the third Tyler fumble of the game at the Los Angeles 26 with 3:59 left. But on 4th-and-1, rookie Anthony Hancock bobbled a Fuller pass as he went out of bounds at the 15 and the Rams then ran out the clock.

After Hancock returned the opening kickoff 25 yards, the Chiefs marched 68 yards for a touchdown in 18 plays, with Billy Jackson hurdling the final yard to give Kansas City a 7-0 lead.

But Los Angeles took a 14-7 lead on TD runs of 1 and 23 yards by Tyler, both in the second period. The two teams then traded turnovers, with a Chiefs' scoring threat halted with 43 seconds left in the half on Johnnie Johnson's interception of a Fuller pass at the Rams' 7-yard line, and Thomas Howard's recovery of a Tyler fumble at the Chiefs' 8-yard line early in the third period.

Tyler led all rushers with 138 yards in 25 carries while Joe Delaney led Kansas City with 69 yards in 18 carries. Fuller completed 12-of-27 passes for 163 yards while Rams' quarterback Bert Jones completed just 6-of-12 passes for 67 yards.

Chargers' QB passes for 337 yards against Broncos

Fouts enjoys 'playoff atmosphere'

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts credited what he called the playoff atmosphere of every game left in the strike-marred NFL season with helping him lead the Chargers to a 30-20 triumph over the Denver Broncos.

"Every game has a playoff atmosphere," he said Sunday after passing for 337 yards and three touchdowns. "It helps keep everyone mentally ready. The Denver defense did a good job of making it rough on everyone. It's an honor to beat them."

Broncos' Coach Dan Reeves said the Chargers deserved the honor because "they made every play they had to."

"I thought it was a poorly officiated game," Reeves complained, "but as long as I get the effort we got today, good things will start happening."

Reeves said his team, which gained 294 yards on offense, was rusty and played conservatively, but he blamed the loss on turnovers.

"How can you have six turnovers and win?" he asked.

Fouts connected with tight end Kellen Winslow for three TDs and passed for more than 300 yards for an NFL career record 27th time.

San Diego, which trailed early in the first quarter and failed to pull ahead comfortably until late in the game, raised its record to 2-2 while the Broncos fell to 2-2.

Denver opened the scoring at 5:43 of the first quarter after safety Mike Harden picked up a fumble by San Diego's James Brooks in the end zone and carried the ball out 10 yards. The Broncos then marched 65 yards to the Charger 10, setting up Rich Karlis' 29-yard field goal which gave Denver a 3-0 lead.

The Chargers came right back in their next possession when Fouts, who completed 27-of-40 passes for 339 yards, hit Charlie Joiner with an 18-yard pass to bring the ball to Denver's 16 as time ran out in the quarter. The Chargers made it 7-3 when Fouts hit Winslow on a 3-yard TD pass.

San Diego's Rolf Benirschke added a 41-yard field goal with 11:14 left in the half to make the score 10-3 and Fouts hit Winslow again from the Denver 28 with 4:56 left in the half to boost the Chargers' lead to 17-3.

Denver came right back in its next possession as DeBerg hit Rick Upchurch with a 15-yard pass to close out the scoring in the half and cut San Diego's lead to 17-10.

The Broncos opened the scoring in the second half when DeBerg slid across the goal line on a 6-yard keeper at 9:26 of the third quarter to tie the game at 17-17.

With 2:34 left in the quarter, Charger rookie defensive end Richard Ackerman sacked DeBerg as he tried to pass deep in his own territory, forcing a fumble that was recovered by defensive end Keith Ferguson on the Broncos' 5-yard line.

Chuck Muncie failed on three tries to score, forcing the Chargers to settle for an 18-yard field goal by Benirschke for a 20-17 lead.

Denver tied the score again when Karlis kicked a 38-yard field goal with 12:20 left, but Fouts put San Diego ahead for good when he threw 3 yards to Winslow in the end zone at 6:16 for a 27-20 lead.

Benirschke iced the victory for the Chargers with a 42-yard field goal with less than a minute left in the game.

Tampa Bay can't afford another loss

Bucs, Miami clash tonight

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Well-rested Miami and Tampa Bay clash at Tampa Stadium tonight in a game which could be pivotal to the playoff hopes of both — particularly the Buccaneers.

Kickoff in the nationally televised game will be at 7 p.m. EST.

With six games to go in the strike-abbreviated NFL season and the playoffs to include the top eight teams in each conference, the Miami Dolphins are 3-0 in the American Conference and the Buccaneers are 0-3 in the National Conference.

A loss will virtually eliminate Tampa Bay from contention for the playoffs and a victory for Miami would just about assure the Dolphins of a spot.

"In our situation and with the shorter season, each win gives us a greater lock on a playoff spot," said Miami safety Lyle Blackwood.

Both teams have worked hard to sharpen their offensive games following last Sunday when neither scored a touchdown. Miami beat Buffalo 9-7 on three field goals by Uwe Von Schamman, while Tampa lost to Dallas 14-9 with the Buccaneer points on three field goals by Bill Capece.

Tampa moved the ball well against the Cowboys, rushing for 135 yards and Doug Williams passing for 247, but the Bucs were ineffective inside the 10-yard line.

Williams is listed as probable for the Miami game with knee and back problems, but he has practiced all week without any sign of distress.

Center Steve Wilson is listed as doubtful with a sprained ankle, while running back Mike Morton is probable with a knee injury and tight end Jimmy Giles is probable with an elbow injury.

The Dolphins are without defensive end Doug Betters, who underwent surgery Tuesday to place a metal pin in his broken right thumb. In addition, wide receiver Vince Heflin is listed as questionable with a hamstring, Blackwood is listed as probable with a thumb injury and tackle Jon Giesler is probable with a back strain.

The Dolphins expect to see a lot of passing out of Williams, even with a sore back.

"Tampa Bay doesn't nickle and dime you like a lot of teams do," Blackwood said. "With the strength of Doug's arm, we'll be looking for a lot more long passes."

On the other side, Tampa linebacker Scott Brantley knows Miami has some strong runners but says the key will be in containing quarterback David Woodley.

Edmonton claims 6th Grey Cup

TORONTO (UPI) -- Warren Moon threw two touchdown passes and Dave Cutler kicked four field goals to break two career records Sunday, powering the Edmonton Eskimos to an unprecedented fifth consecutive Grey Cup championship with a 32-16 win over the Toronto Argonauts.

Moon, a former University of Washington Rose Bowl hero, unleashed a running aerial attack in the first half, hitting wide receiver Brian Kelly with TD passes of 16 and 41 yards while compiling 261 aerial yards to give the Eskimos a 20-14 halftime lead.

But it was the Eskimos' defense, which includes 20 players who have been together for all five championships, who dominated the second half by holding the Argos only to a safety in the final 30 minutes.

The victory, in strong winds and pouring rain before a capacity crowd of 54,744 at Exhibition Stadium, completed one of the finest season-long comebacks ever in the CFL.

Edmonton slumped to 3-5 and the Western Division cellar at midseason but came back with a nine-game winning streak capped by Sunday's win.

It was Edmonton's sixth Grey Cup in the past decade. No other team has ever won more than three straight Grey Cups.

Moon, who had battled flu earlier in the week, was named the game's MVP while Dave Fennell, a member of all six Edmonton champions, won both the outstanding defensive player award and the outstanding Canadian award.

Cutler, the Eskimos 14-year veteran, kicked field goals of 38, 29, 49 and 33 yards to break the Grey Cup record for most career points and most career field goals.

A lucky bounce had been known in the CFL as an "Argo bounce" since before the Toronto club's past three decades of frustration but the Eskimos made a case for calling it the "Eskimo bounce."

The usually sure-handed Eskimos fumbled the ball five times but recovered their own bobble each time.

The Eskimos took a 20-14 lead into the third quarter but it was a fortunate bounce that followed the drive that seemed to break the Argos' spirit.

The Eskimos drove to the Toronto nine where Germany fumbled at the 5-yard line and defensive back Harold Woods recovered for Toronto.

On the next play, Condredge Holloway hit running back Cedric Minter, a former Boise State star, at the Argo 40 but the second-year pro fumbled and award-winning linebacker Dan Kepley recovered and returned to the 34.

Germany carried four times for 22 yards to move the Eskimos to the Argo 2-yard line where he fumbled but recovered, the ball to keep the drive alive.

Cards' gamble results in victory

ATLANTA (UPI) — St. Louis Coach Jim Hanifan rolled the dice Sunday and came up with a natural.

The Cardinals, leading 17-13 in the fourth quarter, drove to a first down on the Atlanta 2-yard line. Three plays later, they were still a yard shy and Hanifan called on Neil O'Donoghue, who kicked an apparent 18-yard field goal.

But the Falcons had too many men on the field and Hanifan decided to go for the touchdown with the ball a half-yard from the goal. Quarterback Neil Lomax sneaked for the score to put St. Louis on top 23-13 when the extra point try was missed.

That was enough to negate a late Atlanta touchdown, which would have tied the score if Hanifan had refused to gamble and kept the three points, as the Cardinals held on for a 23-20 triumph.

"We had decided that we would go for it if we had less than half a yard to go," said Hanifan. "When it became 4th-and-1, we decided to go for three. But then Atlanta was penalized.

"The line had been screaming at me on the sidelines about not letting them go for it from the 1-yard line and I had been screaming back at them saying they had three chances to put it in there and hadn't done it."

But with the penalty, Hanifan said Lomax told him he thought he could make it behind center Dan Dierdorf and guard Joe Bostic. "When he said he was sure, I decided to go for it," said Hanifan.

As it turned out, Atlanta had one final chance to earn a tie and send the game into overtime but Mick Luckhurst, who had kicked two field goals earlier, was wide on a 42-yard try with one second left.

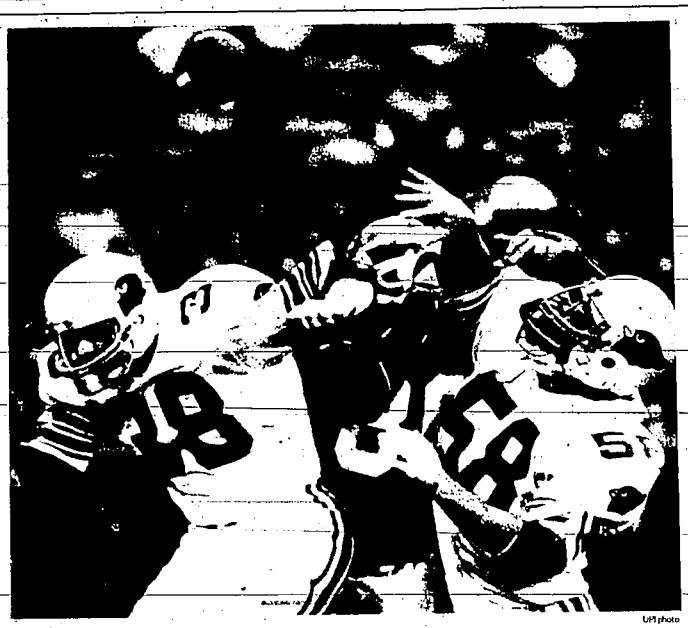

"They must have moved the goal post on me," said Luckhurst. "It was a good kick. It just didn't go in. I can't blame the weather conditions."

Ottis Anderson topped the 100-yard mark for the first time this season with 122 yards on 20 carries, including a 20-yard touchdown romp, to lead the offense as the Cardinals evened their record at 2-2.

"This puts us right back in the playoff picture," said Hanifan. "We have as good a chance as anybody now."

The Cardinals snapped a two-game losing streak as Anderson and fullback Wayne Morris combined for a crunching ground attack that gained 203 yards rushing and enabled St. Louis to control the ball most of the second half. The Cardinals got their other TD on a 2-yard run by Morris in the first period.

O'Donoghue added a 43-yard field goal in the third period.

'Skins remain perfect

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although Joe Theismann, the top-rated quarterback in the NFC, didn't display his best form Sunday, the Washington Redskins keep on rolling.

Theismann completed only 14-of-28 passes, after hitting nearly 68 percent through three games, but one went for a touchdown and the Redskins are still unbeaten.

Theismann threw a 65-yard touchdown pass to rookie Charlie Brown, Mark Moseley kicked field goals of 45 and 43 yards and the Washington defense intercepted four Ron Jaworski passes as the Redskins, 4-0, downed the Philadelphia Eagles 13-9.

"All I want to do is keep this football team doing what it's doing right now and that's winning football games with offense, defense and special teams play," said Theismann. "The defense came through today and the special teams set up the win with Mike Nelms' kickoff return. How well I play is only part of the offense and I think our offense is playing well."

Theismann was intercepted twice, his first thefts of the year. He also racked up 204 yards in the first half, hitting 11-of-15 passes before the field and the football became soggy.

"If you look at the performance of the offense, the first half was better," sad Theismann. "The defenses took over in the second half. I know our defense came up with some very big plays and their defense was awfully tough on us."

Jaworski threw a 44-yard TD pass to Harold Carmichael and Tony Franklin kicked a 41-yard field goal for the Eagles, 1-3.

Franklin's extra point attempt hit the left upright and bounced away, forcing the Eagles to go for a touchdown in the final minutes.

Redskins' safety Mark Murphy stopped an Eagle threat with an interception at the Washington 1-yard line with 5:40 to play, but the Redskins could not move and rookie Jeff Hayes, who had punting problems all day in the rain and mud, punted poorly giving Philadelphia the ball at the Redskins' 38 with 2:39 to play.

Jaworski passed 10 yards to Vito Kah and Barry Harrington ran for 5 yards.

Kramer throws 5 touchdown passes

Vikings take advantage of Bears' blitzing ploy

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Chicago Bears thought they could blitz the Minnesota Vikings, but instead they were blitzed by Tommy Kramer's five touchdown passes.

"I'd rather have a team blitz than anything else they can do on defense because it opens a lot of avenues," Vikings' Coach Bud Grant said after Minnesota won 35-7 Sunday. "Teddie Brown didn't have that many yards rushing, but he did a great job picking up the blitz."

Brown, who acted as an extra blocker in passing situations, rushed for 43 of the Vikings' 63 yards on the ground. Chicago running back Walter Payton was also stymied, gaining just 67 yards on 12 carries.

"The blitzes gave us a chance to go one-on-one," said wide receiver Sammy White, who caught three TD passes. "It's a signal for me to take off. The blitz worked for Chicago last week and this week it didn't."

"They couldn't run against us," said Bears' Coach Mike Ditka, whose team had opened the scoring a 50-yard touchdown pass.

"Then the momentum changed all at once," he said. "I felt as if we hit a brick wall."

The wall was the Vikings' defense, which had seven sacks and three interceptions.

"We felt we didn't play well defensively last week," linebacker Scott Studwell said. "But today we made the big plays. We played as well as an entire team as we have in a long time."

Kramer said the Vikings "executed better" than in last week's 26-7 loss to Green Bay, their first game since the 57-day players' strike.

"The long hours this week paid off," said Kramer, who hit 26-of-35 passes for 342 yards to help even Minnesota's record at 2-2. Chicago dropped to 1-3.

Chicago's Terry Schmidt intercepted Kramer in the second quarter, but the Vikings scored after Randy Holloway recovered a fumble by the Bears' Dennis Gentry on the Chicago 49. Kramer completed 9-of-10 passes in the Vikings' next two possessions, including a 5-yard TD pass to White and a 1-yard scoring throw to Joe Senser, to open a 14-7 lead.

Kramer and White connected in the third quarter on a 65-yard pass and a roughing-the-passer penalty on the same play against Steve McMichael put the ball on the Chicago 7-yard line. Three plays later, Kramer capped the 95-yard drive with an 8-yard TD pass to White for a 21-7 lead.

White caught his third TD, a 13-yarder, with 6:17 to play for the final margin after a 23-yard pass interference penalty against Schmidt and a 30-yard run by Ted Brown.

White had the best day of his career, catching 10 passes for 177 yards, and Kramer's five touchdown throws were also a personal record.

'Old' passing duo clicks for Patriots

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) -- For the first three games this year, Stanley Morgan was one of the better paid decoys in the NFL. And Steve Grogan was sitting on the bench waiting for his chance.

Sunday, they combined for two touchdowns in bringing back memories of the days when the New England Patriots had one of the NFL's most explosive offenses.

Grogan, celebrating his first start in more than a year, threw three touchdown passes, including a pair to Morgan, in leading the Patriots to a 29-21 victory over the Houston Oilers. Morgan had entered the game with three catches for 48 yards. He grabbed five against Houston for 122 yards.

"I was getting frustrated the first two games but I knew I couldn't get greedy," Morgan said. "I know Steve likes to go deep and we've had a thing going for years. It was like old times; it was exciting."

A crowd of 33,602 attended the game, the smallest crowd in the 12-year history of Schaefer Stadium.

Grogan, who took over for the ineffective Matt Cavanaugh, tossed scoring passes of 63 yards and 24 yards to Morgan in completing 10-of-16 attempts for 195 yards. He also flipped a 14-yard TD pass to Tony Collins.

"The first completion was funny -- when I threw it I knew Stanley was going to score. It was just like old times," Grogan said.

Houston Coach Ed Biles said the Oilers' defense entered the game with two goals: to stop the long bomb and to stop Collins, who finished with 161 yards in the sixth-best effort ever by a Patriots' back.

"We just didn't do what we knew we had to do to win. We knew we have to prevent Grogan from completing the bomb and we knew we had to stop Collins. We did neither," Biles said.

Newly signed kicker Dan Miller had two field goals for the Patriots and New England also registered a safety when Oiler quarterback Archie Manning was called for intentional grounding in the end zone. The Patriots' defense harassed Manning all game long, recording six sacks, intercepting a pass and recovering two fumbles.

It was the most sacks since Nov. 4, 1979 for a New England team.

The Oilers, 1-3, opened and closed the scoring. Earl Campbell scored on a 1-yard run, but could gain only 37 yards in 16 carries, falling short by 20 yards of reaching 10,000 career rushing yards.

Manning, who started in place of the injured Gifford Nielsen, completed a 14-yard TD pass to Dave Casper and an 8-yard desperation chest heave to Mike Renfro with 1:39 to play to close the scoring.

Grogan last started on Nov. 15, 1981 and a knee injury forced him out for the remainder of that season. He lost the job in training camp to Cavanaugh but was named the starter on Wednesday after the Patriots' offense had failed to move the ball consistently.

Colts net just 88 yards in 20-0 loss to Buffalo

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) -- For once no statistics told the true story.

The Baltimore Colts racked up 88 total net yards -- 36 rushing and 52 passing. They had six first downs and ran 38 offensive plays. They controlled the ball for 15 minutes and 20 seconds.

Unfortunately for the winless Colts, the numbers didn't tell the tale of one quarter or one half -- but an entire game.

"Offensively, we were very ineffective," understated Colts' Coach Frank Kush after his team dropped a 20-0 decision Sunday to the Buffalo Bills before 38,985 cold and wet fans at Rich Stadium, the smallest crowd to watch a Bills' home game since 1978.

"Somewhat inept is probably a better word," the sometimes hery Baltimore coach added. "We didn't do too many things well."

The Colts, 0-1 this season, didn't get into Buffalo territory during the entire game, reaching just their own 49 on their first possession of the game.

"I thought we did a lot better defensively," said Kush, whose team was shut out by the New York Jets 37-0 last week. "If we're going to make this a better ball club, we've got to go with the young people and sink or swim with them."

Jerome's Hulsey will play some after knee surgery

JEROME — Gary Hulsey has the medical OK to open the basketball season with Jerome and that gives the Tigers hopes of improving on last year's solid 20-7 year.

The Tigers, who must find replacements for a couple of spark plugs lost to graduation in Zane Ostler and Rusty Palmer, open Tuesday night against the tall Gooding Senators in Jerome.

Hulsey is coming back from knee surgery, incurred during the football season, and probably won't be available for full-time duty early in the season.

The 6-5 junior provided 10 points and 10 rebounds in helping Jerome to a strong showing in the state A-2 tournament last year. While he's working himself back into shape and a couple of newcomers must replace Ostler and Palmer, the Tigers will be looking to return starters Kevin Hulsey and Troy Prairie for early-year consistency.

Hulsey, a senior, had 13 points and nine rebounds, while point guard Prairie, a junior, had six points and seven rebounds.

"Our strengths at this time appear to be the experience we have back in key positions," said Coach Pat Hoke. "Our style will depend on the return of Gary Hulsey. With him we'll be a little more conservative on defense and using the break when we have it. Without him we'll be changing defenses more."

Hoke does worry about overall quickness, noting that plus defense, were provided by Palmer and Ostler.

Six seniors are listed on the Jerome roster, including Hulsey, 6-0 Bob Stone, 6-1 Greg Barthlomew, 5-10 David Nishimoto, 6-1 Arnie Peterson and 5-10 Ray Leavitt.

Juniors are headed by Prairie, now 6-2, and Gary Hulsey plus 6-1 Ron Farnsworth, 6-4 Rob Larsen, 5-10 Brian Ahrens and 6-3 Eric Ness. Sophomores Shawn Black, 5-10, and Tim Morris, 6-2, round out the list.

Boys basketball season previews

Buhl

BUHL — Buhl can run and Buhl can shoot. But the question is, can Buhl get many rebounds.

Indian Coach Ben Allen, hopeful of improving on last year's 4-19 record, has the same two problems of a year ago — lack of size and a tough schedule.

"It's tough to beat people when the only way you can get the ball back is when it goes through the net," Allen said.

Actually, the coach feels "I think we will be better than last season. We will be a good shooting team with above average quickness."

But on an 18-man roster than lists the tallest player at 6-3, the weakness will be "our lack of size and experience inside."

The Indians return two starters from last year in Charlie Carter, a 6-1 wing, and 5-11 Darin Strickler. They both averaged six points and about five rebounds. Also back is 5-8 Mark Laing who saw a lot of service and averaged four points and two rebounds.

Rounding out the senior prospects are 6-1 Randy Bostock, 6-0 Greg Meyer, 6-3 Mike Pelton, 6-0 Martin Ordaz, 6-2 Doug Palmer, 5-10 Lonnie Houser and 6-2 Cleat Sonner.

Juniors on the team include 5-9 Jan Clements, 5-10 Mark Munroe, 6-0 Jeff Miller, 6-1 Jamie Bostock, 5-11 Ken Hansen, 6-0 Russ McCoy, 5-11 Dave Cooper and 6-2 Rob Pierce.

Burley

BURLEY — Burley's basketball assets appear improved this year but Coach Gary Swan isn't sure that means the Bobcats can expect a big turnaround.

Last year the Bobcats struggled, losing all the close games and wound up with a 3-19 mark. He hoartily hopes that will improve considerably but points out "this could be a very difficult year. Overall I feel the quality of play throughout the state will be improved this season."

The Bobcats, who will be playing in the A-2 classification for the first time ever when the district tournaments start, have a blend of A-1 and A-2 competition on their schedule. And that doesn't give Swan much comfort.

"There are some very good teams in the district and in the Cross State Conference. Arch-rivals Twin Falls and Minico will be very tough (in non-conference) and Jerome will be very strong in the A-2 district with size and experience returning. In the conference, Riby and Madison are the returning state A-2 finalists and they have six and experienced players," Swan pointed out.

Swan sees the "overall size of our side players, the team's jumping ability and overall quickness" as strong points. Modifying that will be the fact Burley plans to operate with just four seniors.

From a size standpoint, the Bobcats can call on five players in the 6-3 to 6-5 range. Tallest is senior Mark Williams, 6-5 center, while the most experienced is 6-4 senior Randy Austin, going for his third varsity letter. Junior Dan Egbert, who started at times, is 6-4 and Rich Ralphs and Ryan Hull, a pair of 6-3 juniors, round out the size list.

"But we don't have the really big man in the middle and we'll be seeing some of those," Swan said.

Back with a lot of experience are 5-10 guard Tracy Bedke and Dennis Konrad, both possessing good quickness. Juniors rounding out the varsity roster are 6-1 Greg Boyd, 6-0 Scott Barrett, 6-0 Corey Knop, 6-2 Trey Anderson, and 5-8 Garth Searle.

Wood River

HAILEY — With a couple of rebounders and good overall quickness, the Wood River Wolverines will try to carry over the momentum of last year's 17-5 record.

Only 6-4 Lee Ritzau returns as a starter, collecting 12 points and 14 rebounds per game. But this is his third starting year. Coach Dick Richel anticipates that Don Karst, last year's backup point guard, will step in to run the team whith his ball handling and passing ability.

"We have excellent team speed and quickness with smart players with good court awareness," Richel said. "This is a good defensive team that runs out matchup zone effectively."

"Last year's 17-5 season will be very difficult to duplicate," he continued. "It may take a few games more than usual to mesh because of all our inexperience. We will try to apply pressure at both ends of the floor and try to take advantage of our quickness."

"One main plus for the Wolverines is a super hard-working group of kids. They are all very dedicated and have good attitudes. They also believe in themselves and in our system, especially after the fine year we had last year. A lot of that has carried over which is so important when you're trying to lay the foundation of a winning tradition.

"We may struggle early but we may surprise a few people before the season is over," Richel said.

Only three other seniors join Ritzau and Karst on the team, including 5-11 Wade Ehrmantraught, 6-5 Kevin Mills and 5-10 Tracey Farrow.

Juniors on the roster are 6-0 D.J. McMurdo, 6-2 Mike Williams, 6-1 Tony Shrock, 6-4 Bryan Rutter, 5-11 Kip Fry and 5-9 Kevin Uhrich. Dale Karst, a 5-7 guard, is the lone sophomore on the team.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"Popular opinion is the greatest lie in the world." — Thomas Carlyle.

There is more than one finesse available in the play of today's excellent slam. Those who follow the most popular course will go down; those who look for an added chance will land the slam.

Declarer wins his heart jack and counts 11 top tricks — five diamonds, four hearts and two black aces. A 12th winner is immediately apparent if the familiar spade finesse wins. What happens if declarer relies solely on what he's done so often before?

If South takes the spade finesse, West takes his king and exits with a second heart. South wins and runs off all his winners and eventually plays his club ace. A singleton king fails to drop and the slam falls one short.

The best way to play for a 12th trick is to parlay one's chances in both black suits. After winning a few heart tricks; declarer should lead a low club towards dummy's queen. West wins the king and now the spade finesse is not required.

Had the finesse of dummy's club queen lost to East's king; the slam would have another chance with the popular spade finesse.

If the spade finesse is taken first, the slam goes down whenever it loses. If the club finesse is taken first, declarer has two chances rather than one.

2. WHY CHANGE ANOTHER LIGHT BULB?

Imagine a light bulb that could last forever - saving you the money & frustration of bulb changing. Or a bulb that burns with a cooler softer glow that saves energy. Now all your existing light bulbs can be this miracle bulb — with new microchip technology — when you own Mellin Life-Saver/TM — a solid state micro chip that sticks to the bottom of any incandescent one way bulb. Mellin Life-Saver converts alternating current (AC) to direct current (DC). This results in a cooler burning bulb that lasts up to 100 times longer - a normal 750-hour bulb will burn for 75,000 hours - or 24 hours a day for up to eight years! Used periodically the same bulb could last a lifetime - and it consumes 30% less electricity. UL listed - it is completely safe to use - and it comes with a unheard of 8 year warranty and one year money back guarantee. Local satisfied customers back up our claims. We sell Life-Savers all over America and Canada via mail order. Inexpensively priced - and users report a normal payback period of 3-6 months. Send for free illustrated mail order brochure, no obligation whatsoever. No one will call.
